Portsmouth Labor Talks About Boycott

Phone Co. Labeled Target; 'Economic Sanctions' Also Eyed

PORTSMOUTH (AP) — Telephones here have been back in operation less than a week, but there's talk of removing some of them in a boycott of the company.

It comes as part of one of three measures being considered by organized labor to aid the Communications Workers of America if that union's strike against Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. lasts much longer.

Besides removal of telephones, members of unions other than the CWA have suggested an extended labor holiday in Portsmouth and possible banning of purchases at Portsmouth business places. This would be another form of protest—economic sanctions.

Also under study by a three-man committee is a measure to investigate a proposal that Peoples Development Corp. purchase Ohio Consolidated, and study of the possibility of Portsmouth and suburban New Boston acquiring the company.

* * *

THE COMMITTEE considering these recommendations is made up of Emerson T. Pence, secretary-treasurer of the Portsmouth CIO Council; Daniel Buckley, former president of the AFL-Central Labor Council, and C. E. Vanderpool, president of the AFL Building Trades Council.

While labor pondered possible courses of action, the city of Portsmouth went to court to oppose a citizen's lawsuit that would force police to remove barricades from around Ohio Consolidated's exchange here.

Judge Case Denies Stiff Ban on Pickets

PORTSMOUTH (AP)—The application of Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. for a strengthened injunction to bar all picketing at its strikebound exchange here was thrown out in Common Pleas Court here today by Judge John P. Case of Fayette County.

Judge Case ruled company attorneys had not supported their application by a memorandum or affidavit as required by law or the rules of the court. He gave the attorneys leave to resubmit the motion later, but advised them to make it "clear and specific."

Under an existing court order, the Communications Workers of American union is limited to three pickets at each of the two entrances to the exchange.

Boy Given Peek At Santa Claus

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP)—David Stephens, 6, has been wearing bandages on his eyes for six weeks but the doctors granted a Christmas wish—he got a quick peek at Santa Claus.

The doctors permitted removal of the bandages the other day when Santa Claus came to visit, bringing a guitar for David. Next day the boy underwent a second operation for correction of detached retinas.

The doctors said it is possible, if all goes well, that the bandages can be removed by Christmas.

Track Bed Slips, Train Is Upset

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP)—An Illinois Central passenger train plunged 20 feet down a muddy embankment early today when its rain-weakened roadbed gave way. Two passengers were injured fatally and 18 others were hospitalized.

Dead are Mrs. Orson Covell, North Platte, Neb., and Henry Hudson, 67, a farmer from Groverdale, Miss.

The train was three miles from the Belleville station and was crossing a high fill when the roadbed gave way.

White House Cheerier because They Remembered

The Dentons--Doug, Sandy and Greg--Read a Prized 'Thank You' Note

There are no happier three youngsters anywhere today than Sandy, Greg and Doug Denton. They have a letter thanking them for their Christmas gifts— and it was signed, in big flowing handwriting, "Mamie Doud Eisenhower."

At the top of the paper are these simple, but very impressive words: "The White House, Washington, D. C."

About two weeks ago, Sandy, 7, Greg, 6 and Doug, 4, watched as their mother, Mrs. Robert Denton, 927 Lincoln Dr., fashioned "Gay Nineties" stockings for them to give to their teachers to hang by the fireplace for Santa Claus.

Sandy, remembering November when the praises of President Eisenhower had been sung around the house so fervently, suddenly remarked: "Let's send one to Ike and Mrs. Eisenhower."

* * *

HER PLEA was so earnest. . . . what mother could deny it? And, since there was an extra stocking for a man and another for a woman, Mrs. Denton told Sandy: "You write your letter and I'll wrap them for you."

So, Sandy, with her two younger brothers looking over her shoulders, wrote in with childish hand:

"If you will hang these by your fireplace, Santa will fill them with sweet surprises."

The "Gay Nineties" stockings were made of light weight felt and about two feet long. For the ladies, they were bright red ringed with white stripes. The men's were plain red. Each had black high button shoes of felt. The buttons on the ladies' stockings were tiny bells and at the top of the lacing was a red bow.

* * *

SOON the morning's mail brought a letter from "The White House" addressed to "Sandy, Greg and Doug Denton." It said:

"Your Christmas gifts for the President and me are adorable—almost as much so as the picture of yourselves which you enclosed! You look like such nice young people, that it is no wonder that you were thoughtful enough to bring pleasure to my husband and me in this special way.

"Santa should be especially good to the President and me when he sees your charming "Gay Nineties" stockings. These felt pieces are cleverly fashioned, and will be bright spots indeed on our mantel Dec. 24. Thank you for giving us this lovely surprise.

Christmas Spirit Everywhere!

The most celebrated event in all Christendom is now only three days away, but they will be busy days as the Christmas spirit spreads over Fayette County.

It's the same, the world over, to greater or lesser degree.

There are the last - minute preparations for the coming of Santa Claus, the wrapping of gifts, trimming of many a Christmas tree and, most important of all, religious services.

"For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulders; his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace."

So, spoke the prophet Isaiah 1956 years ago, telling of the birth of Jesus Christ— the birth that inspired the Christmas holiday that will be observed next Tuesday.

Some Christmas programs of song and story already have been given in schools and churches, but more will be held during the next three days.

Nehru Lashes Out Against World's Military Alliances

NEW YORK (AP) — India's Prime Minister Nehru ends his six-day American visit today as he began it—still convinced that collective security pacts will not preserve world peace.

Tonight a Royal Canadian Air Force plane will fly Nehru to Ottawa for weekend conferences with Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent.

Nehru made the most of his brief New York visit Thursday with a triple - barreled round of speeches. All of them were woven around the theme that a positive but peaceful approach could solve the problems of Hungary and the Middle East hostilities "without too great difficulties."

In a speech at an informal gathering of United Nations General Assembly delegates and in a speech before the American Assn. for the United Nations, Nehru lashed out at the concept of military pacts and alliances.

* * *

IT WAS AN indication that any effort President Eisenhower or Secretary of State Dulles may have made to convince Nehru of the need for such pacts had failed.

Nehru told a distinguished audience at the Carnegie Endowment Center, near the U. N., that the prestige of the United States had shot up all over the world because of "certain attitudes" it had taken in regard to the military intervention of Britain and France in Egypt.

"It shows that when a nation acts according to principle and perhaps not caring for the consequences there, it gains tremendous strength," he said.

Earlier at the U. N. Nehru called bluntly for an end to military alliances and challenged nations to settle their quarrels openly before the international body.

Nehru has been an unremitting foe of the Baghdad Pact and Southeast Asia Treaty Organization which he claimed increased instead of eliminating tension because they aroused fear.

Nehru said good has resulted from "the two tragedies in Egypt and Hungary."

"Nations should think twice before they enrage the conscience of the world. One big thing, world opinion is a strong enough factor not to tolerate what it considers wrong," he said.

Reds Battle Unrest Behind Iron Curtain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist leaders in Russia and her satellites are described in reports collected here as fighting widespread Iron Curtain unrest with a combination of economic handouts and police state tyranny.

These reports, some of them unconfirmed, have been appearing ever since the October revolt in Hungary.

Mostly they are about student opposition to Communist doctrine and restrictions. Some tell of demonstrations by workers.

What they all add up to is a matter of speculation. American and other diplomats studying them caution against laying too much emphasis on their meaning.

Perhaps, they say cracks are showing up in the once-monolithic Soviet system. But they add that does not mean the Soviet system is collapsing.

The concessions reported included improved pensions in all the satellites, price cuts in Albania and Czechoslovakia and wage increases in Albania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania.

In most cases of reports of unrest, the Communist papers provided a tipoff by publishing stories condemning the incidents. These reports include:

Russia — Demands by students at Moscow University that a second political party be created. A walkout of 200 students from a Moscow lecture when the lecturer refused to discuss Soviet policy toward Hungary.

Poland — Demonstrations at a half-dozen cities.

Bulgaria — Regime warned of "secret enemies" in the country, and of "dissident elements." Students refused to attend political classes.

Albania — Strikes and demonstrations in a number of places.

Lithuania — Signs demanding "Russians go home."

Russian Goal Said To Export Scholars To Top U. S. Dollars

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Soviet Union is turning out engineers at a rate three times faster than the United States, a recent visitor to Russia told the Autumn graduating class of Ohio State University Thursday.

"Its goal seems to be to export scholars to match our export of foreign aid dollars," Norman P. Auburn, president of the University of Akron, told the commencement audience.

The Russians, Auburn said, are proud to be called intellectual "egg heads." Measured by our standards, he said, the Soviet Union is paying college professors about $25,000 and outstanding research scientists $60,000 a year.

"The best we can hope for," he said, "is a period of competitive co-existance." The Russians, he warned, "are playing for time" while their economy and war potential are being strengthened.

Wreathed with Garlands of Love

America's Yule Tree Is Matchless

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

It is a tree of matchless splendor, wreathed in garlands of love and devotion.

Bright Christmas colors gleam in the branches, symbols of warmth and compassion, courage and hope. That silver bell is a child's laugh, the holly a kindly act. The shimmering ornaments were put there by happiness, and the candles speak of faith.

Where is this tree?

It is everywhere in America.

Who brings these precious gifts?

One was a man in Philadelphia, a delicatessen owner. He bought a big tree, set it up outdoors, decorated and lighted it, and put a sign on it:

"This tree is for all people who are homeless or who have no Christmas tree of their own."

And one was a judge in Utica, N. Y., who was about to jail a chronic alcoholic when the prisoner showed him a letter from his daughter. It said she thought the man was dead.

The judge, withholding sentence, gave him some money and said:

"Merry Christmas and God bless you; I hope you get to her."

Surely a bright strand was placed on the tree this week by Dr. Laurence Jones, 72-year-old Negro educator. He is president of the Piney Woods School in Mississippi where 500 underprivileged youngsters work their way from grammar school to college.

He came to Camp Kilmer, N.J., bringing Christmas trees and 10 bushels of pecans grown by his students, to the Hungarian child refugees there.

"We have very little at Piney Woods to share with you," he said, "but my students are deeply grateful to America. We know it will be equally good to you."

And surely a television program in the Veterans Administration hospital in San Fernando, Calif., will throw a bright gleam on the tree.

There, on Christmas Day, veterans suffering from tuberculosis will talk to their families over a closed-circuit TV hookup. It has been years since some of the men saw their children. Those under 15 are not admitted to the tuberculosis wards.

Wreathed with Garlands of Love

America's Yule Tree Is Matchless

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

It is a tree of matchless splendor, wreathed in garlands of love and devotion.

Bright Christmas colors gleam in the branches, symbols of warmth and compassion, courage and hope. That silver bell is a child's laugh, the holly a kindly act. The shimmering ornaments were put there by happiness, and the candles speak of faith.

Where is this tree?

It is everywhere in America.

Who brings these precious gifts?

One was a man in Philadelphia, a delicatessen owner. He bought a big tree, set it up outdoors, decorated and lighted it, and put a sign on it:

"This tree is for all people who are homeless or who have no Christmas tree of their own."

And one was a judge in Utica, N. Y., who was about to jail a chronic alcoholic when the prisoner showed him a letter from his daughter. It said she thought the man was dead.

The judge, withholding sentence, gave him some money and said:

"Merry Christmas and God bless you; I hope you get to her."

Surely a bright strand was placed on the tree this week by Dr. Laurence Jones, 72-year-old Negro educator. He is president of the Piney Woods School in Mississippi where 500 underprivileged youngsters work their way from grammar school to college.

He came to Camp Kilmer, N.J., bringing Christmas trees and 10 bushels of pecans grown by his students, to the Hungarian child refugees there.

"We have very little at Piney Woods to share with you," he said, "but my students are deeply grateful to America. We know it will be equally good to you."

And surely a television program in the Veterans Administration hospital in San Fernando, Calif., will throw a bright gleam on the tree.

There, on Christmas Day, veterans suffering from tuberculosis will talk to their families over a closed-circuit TV hookup. It has been years since some of the men saw their children. Those under 15 are not admitted to the tuberculosis wards.

City May Get Rescue Unit

Volunteers Sought For Defense Project

If there are enough volunteers to man it, a completely equipped truck of the 11th Mobile Defense Unit will be based in Washington C. H. as a part of the Civil Defense program.

This was disclosed Friday by George Montgomery, chief of rescue here, who said 20 men are needed for the force here. He said volunteers may get in touch with him or C. Virgil Sexton, director of Civil Defense for Fayette County.

Once the volunteer force is organized, Montgomery said, a captain and team leaders will be appointed by state headquarters.

* * *

THE TRUCK, Montgomery said, is equipped with flood lights, power saws, acetylene torches, all kinds of tools and first aid supplies to handle any type of emergency connected with such disasters as collapsed buildings, wrecks and fires in which people might be injured or trapped in debris.

When and where the truck will be stationed here is still uncertain. When the volunteer force here is organized, Montgomery said, its members will be uniformed and outfitted by the state Civil Defense unit.

Meanwhile, Montgomery, a graduate of the federal Civil Defense rescue school at Olney, Md., and Sexton are handling the organization proceedures.

Army Missile Secrecy Role Said Strange

WASHINGTON (AP)—Military officials continue to cloak their missile test operations in official secrecy although the test center on Florida's populous east coast is open to public view from the sea.

It is known that three months ago technicians fired a test type of the projected Jupiter intermediate range ballistic missile. This Army missile appears to have shot up more than 600 miles and to have flown 3,000 miles into the South Atlantic.

The Defense Department refused to permit advance notice of the recent test firing of a standard Viking rocket similar to the first-stage engine planned for launching the projected earth satellites. Newsmen, in requesting permission to go to the base for such a test firing, cited an earlier government statement that the satellite project, a purely scientific effort, would not be encumbered by military security. The explanation for the refusal was that other military equipment was on the base.

The missile test center is heavily protected on land by fences and armed guards. But most of its area is in plain sight from a beach across a narrow strip of water. And civilian-operated boats are free to sail close to shore.

Quake Recorded

CLEVELAND (AP) — The seismograph at John Carroll University recorded a strong earthquake at 5:05:47 a. m. today. Observers estimated the quake was in southern Alaska.

Girl, 12, Finds Parents Slain

CLEVELAND (AP)—When 12-year-old Mary Knoll returned from Christmas shopping Thursday, she found the bodies of her mother and father on the floor in the living and dining rooms of their suburban Lakewood home.

Police said Joseph Knoll, who was in his early 50s, apparently plunged a 7-inch knife into the chest of his 48-year-old wife Elizabeth, then slashed his own wrists and stabbed himself in the chest.

Knoll died en route to Lakewood Hospital. His wife was dead when police arrived at the home.

Coal constituted forty per cent of all dry cargo imported in 1956 into West Germany.

Licenses of two drivers were suspended when they appeared in Municipal Court here Friday morning to answer charges of reckless operation.

Jones, 18, of 553 Albin Ave., city, was fined $25 and costs, with the fine suspended, and was barred from driving for 60 days.

William E. Lyons, 22, of 200 Curtis St., was fined $10 and costs for speeding on Rt. 22. He pleaded guilty.

Ralph G. Von Hiltz, a transient who was arrested for disorderly conduct and panhandling, was fined $25 and costs, but the fine was suspended on condition that he get out of the city and remain out.

Police were ready for their challenging task. Many states marshaled all available troopers for highway patrol duty. Some of them have shifted officers from desk jobs to road assignments.

The prime targets are speeders and drunks.

Incidently, Winter arrived at 4 p. m. EST today and the weatherman has compiled some facts to set people straight about the day:

You're wrong if you think the sun rises later and sets earlier in the United States today than on any other day of the year.

That happens only at the Arctic Circle.

The time of sunrise and sunset varies with the latitude.

For cities stretching in a belt from New York westward through Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Denver and Portland, Ore., the earliest sunset occurs about Dec. 8 and the latest sunrise about Jan. 4.

In Miami, Fla., the earliest sunset occurs about Dec. 1 and the latest sunrise about Jan. 12.

However, when both sunrise and sunset are taken into account the least amount of daylight does occur about Dec. 21.

Good Hope Lions Combine Ladies Night, Yule Party

The first ladies night ever held by the year-old Good Hope Lions Club was combined with its Christmas party Thursday night and, after it was all over, the consensus was that it would become an annual affair.

It started with a dinner at 7:30 p. m. in the Yuletide atmosphere of Wayne Hall. The tables and dining room were bright and colorful with Christmas decorations.

The business session which followed the dinner was brief, limited to introduction of guests and announcements by President Earl Rea.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Craig of Robinson Rd., Donald Gorman, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cowdery and Mr. and Mrs. John Sagar. Cowdery is a member of the Bloomingburg Lions Club and chairman of this zone. Sagar, a member and past president of the Washington C. H. club, has moved from here to his new farm home on the Good Hope-Greenfield Rd.

The club president announced that the board of directors will meet Dec. 27, and that the zone meeting will be held at Sedalia March 13.

* * *

BEFORE the business meeting adjourned, there was some discussion of the fox drive the club plans to sponsor in February and were approved plans for supplying hams for a dozen baskets the Good Hope Methodist Church is to distribute to needy families in the community.

The Rev. Father Richard J. Connelly, pastor of St. Colman's Catholic Church here, was the principal speaker. The Christian faith, he said, is what has brought humanity forward through the centuries since the birth of Christ. He pointed out that Americans are fortunate to live outside the Iron Curtain and that they have freedom of worship to give them strength.

While his talk was reverently serious, it was lightened by a thread of humor and stories of some of his personal experiences.

'Jim Crow' Dies in 'Bama Bus Dispute

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Racial segregation ended on city buses in Montgomery today, bringing to a dramatic close a pattern in public transportation dating back for many years.

There were no reports of violence as the integration began but four carloads of white men and others in a pickup truck kept close watch.

One white man shouted to photographers:

Most of the early riders were Negroes, some of whom had boycotted the segregated buses for more than a year until today.

Some of the Negroes took seats toward the front, previously reserved for white passengers under the now outlawed separate seating pattern. Others went to the rear.

The "white" and "colored" signs which once divided the two races were gone today—proof that "Jim Crow" was dead.

The U. S. Supreme Court decision outlawing bus segregation in this Deep South city of about 120,000 population went into effect Thursday, but the Negroes waited until today to return.

The first report of actual race-mixing on the buses came shortly before 7 a. m., nearly two hours after the buses started their morning runs.

Mrs. Dora Eakins Dies Here Thursday

Mrs. Dora Eakins, 84, widow of Noah Eakins, died at 10:50 p. m. Thursday in Memorial Hospital where she had been a patient 10 days. She had been seriously ill two months.

A native of Highland County, Mrs. Eakins who lived at 1023 Washington Ave., had spent the last 60 years in Fayette County and at one time had been a resident of the Buena Vista community. She was a member of the White Oak Methodist Church.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. W. E. Robinson, Washington C. H., Mrs. Dewey Overmire, Columbus, and Mrs. Robert Ritter Route 3, Greenfield; a son, Howard, who is a resident of California; seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Her husband died 11 years ago.

Services will be at 2 p. m. Sunday in the Gerstner Funeral Home, with burial in White Oak Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home any time after noon Saturday.

Nixon Continues Inspection Of Refugee Setup in Austria

VIENNA (AP) — Vice President Nixon met with Chancellor Julius Raab and most of the Austrian cabinet for an hour and a half today, discussing the problem created by 140,000 Hungarian refugees.

Nixon is seeking first-hand information to guide President Eisenhower and the U. S. Congress in dealing with the aftermath of the Hungarian revolution.

Although Nixon and members of his party declined to discuss the meeting with the Austrian leaders, authoritative sources disclosed that the Austrian federal government will have spent more than $7 million caring for refugees by Jan. 1. This does not include spending by provincial and local governments or private donations.

The Austrians hope the United States will help them pay the bill, as well as take more of the refugees off their hands.

* * *

AS NIXON started the second day of his study, newly arrived refugees reported that they had experienced "great difficulties" in reaching the border area.

Only 688 Hungarians crossed into Austria during the night, compared with 1,000 or more nightly earlier this week. The refugees said that strict checks were being made on Hungarian trains and that most of those who sought to quit the country had to hitchhike or walk to the border.

After shaking hands and chatting with many of the refugees, he (1) visited Interior Minister Oskar Helmer, recuperating from a minor operation in a hospital; (2) watched U. S. immigration officers interview a Hungarian family preparing to go to the United States; (3) visited the office of the International Committee for European Migration where refugees are processed and assigned to planes and trains for transportation to the United States and other countries.

Nixon was to leave for Salzburg tonight for a look at refugee camps in that area and then go to Munich Friday.

Nixon Continues Inspection Of Refugee Setup in Austria

VIENNA (AP) — Vice President Nixon met with Chancellor Julius Raab and most of the Austrian cabinet for an hour and a half today, discussing the problem created by 140,000 Hungarian refugees.

Nixon is seeking first-hand information to guide President Eisenhower and the U. S. Congress in dealing with the aftermath of the Hungarian revolution.

Although Nixon and members of his party declined to discuss the meeting with the Austrian leaders, authoritative sources disclosed that the Austrian federal government will have spent more than $7 million caring for refugees by Jan. 1. This does not include spending by provincial and local governments or private donations.

The Austrians hope the United States will help them pay the bill, as well as take more of the refugees off their hands.

* * *

AS NIXON started the second day of his study, newly arrived refugees reported that they had experienced "great difficulties" in reaching the border area.

Only 688 Hungarians crossed into Austria during the night, compared with 1,000 or more nightly earlier this week. The refugees said that strict checks were being made on Hungarian trains and that most of those who sought to quit the country had to hitchhike or walk to the border.

After shaking hands and chatting with many of the refugees, he (1) visited Interior Minister Oskar Helmer, recuperating from a minor operation in a hospital; (2) watched U. S. immigration officers interview a Hungarian family preparing to go to the United States; (3) visited the office of the International Committee for European Migration where refugees are processed and assigned to planes and trains for transportation to the United States and other countries.

Nixon was to leave for Salzburg tonight for a look at refugee camps in that area and then go to Munich Friday.

Cincy Fraternity Suspended from Campus Activities

CINCINNATI (AP)—University of Cincinnati officials Thursday suspended Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity from all activities as the result of morals charges brought by a 15-year-old girl. The order directed that the chapter house be closed.

Santa Speaks French for Little Girl

She is Marilyn Michel, 3, who came to this country with her parents only six weeks ago.

She doesn't speak any English so she was a bit heart broken the other day when she went to a department store with her step-grandmother to see Santa. She saw all the other youngsters talking to him but she realized she couldn't speak his language.

But Santa fooled her.

He suddenly started talking to her in French and the happy Marilyn told him she wanted a "petite poupee"—a little doll for Christmas.

D. W. Jacot, 77, the department store "Pere Noel" says, "the smile she gave me at that moment was the crowning reward for my years of playing Santa Claus. It brought tears to my eyes."

Jacot explained that his parents, who were born in Switzerland, taught him to speak French and that although his command of the language isn't perfect it was good enough for Marilyn.

are not the right size, but it has long been the custom to try to get this done within the week after Christmas. Most merchants, anticipating exchanges, arrange to leave the gift stocks in place for the week to simplify the procedure for the customers. They say, too, they like to get the exchanges made before the annual store inventories are started right after the first of the year.

Stores have been open from 9 a. m. until 9 p. m. all this week, the hours that will be observed here Saturday. But on Monday they are to close at 5 p. m. to give the weary clerks time to get their own Christmas plans completed at home.

SCHOOLS CLOSED for the holiday throughout Fayette County and Washington C. H. this afternoon and will not open until next year—in the Miami Trace district on Jan. 2 and in Washington C. H. on Jan. 3.

Adding to the Christmas spirit for the last couple of weeks have been the Christmas carols broadcast from recordings from loud speakers atop the Courthouse.

Thursday night the Washington C. H. High School brass choir played carols throughout the city for three hours before midnight, despite the rainy weather.

Tonight, teams of Jaycees are to judge Washington C. H. home on their Christmas decorations. Trophies will be awarded to the best in the city and to the first and second place winners in each of the four wards.

Between now and Christmas, scores of baskets will be filled with food and distributed to homes where Christmas might otherwise be sad and dreary. Church groups, lodges and other organizations are filling the baskets, how many, probably never will be known.

JOY WILL be brought to the hearts of around 400 youngsters at the annual Community Christmas Party sponsored by the Paul H. Hughey post of the American Legion here Friday afternoon. Plans have been made to entertain 400 specially invited little guests 6 to 10 years old from Washington C. H. and Fayette County at the Legion Hall. There, Santa Claus will give them toys, many of them donated and repaired and painted by Legionnaires. Legionnaires will serve ice cream and cookies.

One of the busiest places here for the last week or so has been the post office through which thousands of letters and packages have passed. Postmaster Clark Wickensimer said mail has been heavier this year than last.

Moving toward a new record, 390,690 letters have gone through the post office during the first 19 days of December this year compared with 361,170 for the same period last year. Stamp records, he added, show the parcel post business this year is ahead of that of last year.

Ten extra carriers and five extra clerks have been on the post office force for the holiday to keep mail moving.

Although Monday is a holiday for federal employes by presidential proclamation, the post office windows will be open until 4 p. m. and the lobby until 8 p. m. On Saturday the windows will close at 2 p. m. although the lobby will remain open until 8 p. m. Regular deliveries will be made both Saturday and Monday. On Christmas Day, the lobby will be open, but the windows will be closed. Special delivery mail will be distributed only in the morning.

ONCE UPON A CHRISTMAS EVE

By WILLIAM RITT

ESKI rushes to the headquarters of Mister Weatherbee the Weather Watcher to tell him about the twins. "I might be able to reach them if I could use the Rainbow," says Eski, "do you think the Storm King will let me?"

"I'LL SEE," says Mister Weatherbee, "but the old Storm King is pretty grouchy about this time of the year!" Then he tunes in his radiophone and calls out: "Attention, Storm King! Weatherbee calling the Storm King!"

THE STORM KING answers with a thunderous growl. "Loan you the Rainbow? Are you crazy? Stop bothering me --- I'm all tired out from shipping a batch of blizzards to North America and now I need my sleep! Goodby!"

"NO USE," says Mister Weatherbee as he sadly hangs up. "Oh, please let me try to talk to him," begs Eski. The Storm King's phone rings again, but he just glares at it. Do you think he'll answer? (To Be Continued)

People . . . Places . . . and Things

Round about Fayette County

First arrivals of white settlers in this community found themselves equipped with meager personal property, for they could bring little "over the mountains" by horseback, although many used covered wagons to have a few primitive articles for household use and for clearing the land to make it tillable.

The ax was the chief implement of the trail blazers and those who first tackled the herculean task of establishing a home in the dense forests.

In those days the only means of trapping game rested on the skill of the pioneers, and there were no "steel traps" available in this primitive country.

However the resourceful pioneers made their own traps when it was necessary, and were able to catch large wild animals, birds and fish with the crude but effective traps.

The traps for larger game were made by selecting a proper spot, driving four stout pegs into the earth perhaps a foot apart, forming a square, then driving a strong section of a sapling into the ground, to which a piece of limb was attached (usually a few inches in length) as part of the "trigger." A heavy buckskin thong was then spread about the pegs and anchored to the trigger post, after which a heavy sapling was bent over and the thong attached to the end of the sapling.

When an animal tripped the trigger, he was instantly swung into the air by the thong closing over a leg or his head, and he hung helpless in the air.

Triggered "dead falls" were used in trapping smaller animals. Quail and will turkeys were trapped by building wooden coops, fastened together at the corners with hickory bark, lifting them up at one side, placing a trigger under them, and spreading food to attract the birds under the coop. When the trigger was touched, the raised side of the coop fell, and the birds were imprisoned.

Fish traps were made by building slatted cages with funnel openings which permitted the fish to swim into the trap but they could not readily find the small opening to escape.

It was an easy matter to raise the traps with a long pole or other means, remove the fish, and replace it in the water.

REALLY BAD LUCK

You often have heard that old superstition that it is bad luck for a black cat to cross a person's path unless the person turns back.

I can prove that the old saying is really true.

Recently within a few miles on one Fayette County road, I saw two black cats which had been killed by motor vehicles.

SOME REPERCUSSIONS

Believe it or not, the announcement that the publishers are discontinuing three big magazines—Colliers, The American and the Women's Home Companion has repercussions extending to Washington C. H., as well as tremendous importance in Springfield and Chillicothe.

In Springfield where the magazines were published, around 2,000 persons are affected by reason of their employment in the big Crowell Publishing Co. plant.

In Chillicothe the Mead Paper Co. must find another outlet for a huge supply of book paper which has been supplied to the Springfield publishers in huge quantities.

In this city and county, the fleet of Mead Paper Co. trucks which have been passing through the city almost daily, will no longer haul heavy loads of special white paper to be devoured by the monster presses where the three magazines were published.

MOTHER'S OATS, TOO

That little yearn I carried in this column recently about premiums for "lion heads" from Lion Head Coffee, and signatures from Arbuckle Coffee, has brought a number of echoes from various parts of the county.

One of these comes from Jasper Township, where a resident recalls how the neighborhood women traded back and forth until each one could obtain enough letters from "Mother's Oats" to spell the word "mother," and then sent for a set of dishes given as a premium for enough letters to spell the word.

Then there were other prizes, offered by various tobacco manufacturers. These included saving stars from Star plug tobacco; little tin axes from "Battle Ax Plug," and tin tokens from Kentucky Plug tobacco. Knives, spoons, and other articles were given as premiums, and neighbors traded these articles, or gave them to those wishing to cash in on the premiums offered.

Perhaps those were the days of real sport.

I am endeavoring to locate a copy of "Pioneer Record and Reminiscences of the Early Settlers and Statement of Fayette County, Ohio," edited by Rufus Putnam, of Chillicothe, and published in 1872. I would appreciate any information regarding this history of Fayette County.

The history contains 120 pages, and probably has a paper cover.

Rufus Putnam was from Chillicothe, and I note that he credits "H How" (Hepry Howe), with part of the history contained in the volume.

Was A Child On Your Christmas List?

There is something deeper, happier and more significant about the spirit of Christmas for most of us than any other time of the year.

Today, even though our world is perplexed, worried and to some extent confused by international tensions, we try to enjoy our Christmas season and endeavor to understand what "goodwill toward men" means as to our personal responsibilities.

Most people are inclined to be sympathetic with those whose troubles are greater than ours. Today who is there in a country like ours, who is not deeply moved by the plight of the people of Hungary where patriots have felt the iron heel of Soviet Russia's brutality, or by the pictures of starving children in many lands where there is not the abundance with which America is blessed?

If we cannot help others who perhaps are too far removed for us to reach, there are many people around us near home, whose needy condition, should have our sympathy backed by our generosity.

This was called to our attention within the last week when a clerk in one Washington C. H. store told us of a well groomed woman shopper who stood before a toy counter, wistfully looking over some of the attractive Yuletide offerings for children.

She was heard to remark, "I wish I had some children to buy things for. Not having any children takes something away from Christmas".

We quite agree with this woman shopper but it is hard to understand how anybody can fail to have some child or children on a Christmas shopping list, simply because she has no child of her own.

There are hundreds of little boys and girls in Fayette County whose Christmas this, or perhaps in other years, is likely to be a barren one. This may be due to parents being without sufficient means, families in trouble, or it may be the result of having no one close enough to them to care.

What if there aren't any children in one's immediate family? The world is full of children — the children and grandchildren of friends; neighbors' children, the children on "needy family" lists who have to depend on strangers for their Christmas toys, children in hospitals, children in orphans' homes.

A grownup doesn't need to know a child well or even at all to offer a Christmas gift.

Of all the presents grownups buy, the ones they choose for children really seem to be the most Christmasy.

Cost isn't important—the child won't know or care what the present costs. Taste doesn't necessarily enter in — only "Will the child like or have fun with this?" And there's none of that business of exchanging gifts. What you give to a child you really give, expecting nothing in return but the child's pleasure and your own.

It is easy to understand that a Christmas list without a child on it is a comparatively dreary thing for many people.

Taj Mahal on Every Corner

By Hal Boyle

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Money talks every where in America today. But here the big dollar emits a mighty holler.

You have to be stone deaf not to hear it, or color blind not to see it in this platinum playground of Florida's Gold Coast.

The "expense account rich" who prefer to live quietly in their own hometowns (so the neighbors won't get jealous), like to flaunt their wealth in public here.

But in a way it's hard to do. One man's Cadillac is about as long as another man's. A wife can wear only so many minks on her back without smothering.

"The only way the rich can impress each other here," said one longtime student of the foibles of the well-to-do, "is at charitable functions. One big shot gets up and says, 'I'll contribute $5,000,' and another big shot puts him in his place by saying, 'Put me down for ten grand.' "

But the quickest way for a stranger to attract attention here is either to stroll down the street nude or with a portrait of Salmon P. Chase plastered on his forehead.

Who is Salmon P. Chase? Well, look in your wallet, and pull out the first $10,000 bill you come across. The guy portrayed on it is Salmon P. Chase, who was Abe Lincoln's secretary of the treasury.

Some 1,750,000 people visit Miami Beach every year, and millions more wonder what it is really like.

In all India there is but one Taj Mahal. In Miami Beach there is a Taj Mahal or a reasonable facsimile on nearly every corner.

Each is a hotel with ocean front rooms renting for $40 a day up during the winter season and suites for $100 a day up. A famous couple during a two-week stay in a flossy penthouse ran up a bill of $6,000—more than a lot of people spend in an entire year.

In European cities tourists visit cathedrals, museums and palaces. Miami Beach is perhaps the only city in the world which has guided tours of hotel lobbies, each more splendid than the last.

Here a bartender gets about $60 a week in salary and $140 or more in tips. A dishwasher can make up to $90 a week. Since few tourists come out to the kitchen to tip the dishwasher, he gets to keep any stray raw oyster pearls the guests overlook.

Miami Beach has 381 hotels, 360 restaurants and night clubs, 19 churches and synagogues, 2,200 apartment buildings, 6,000 private residences, two municipal golf courses, 10 parks, a free fishing pier, eight miles of beach and 416 swimming pools.

It has 9 public schools and 50 private schools!

What doesn't Miami Beach have? It doesn't have a cemetery.

It doesn't have a railroad station, a slum, a gambling hall, a place where you can buy a five-cent hot dog, or a pawn shop.

The Hungarian Relief Problem

By George Sokolsky

Americans are generous and they give freely to good causes. This is particularly true during the Christmas season. Therefore, it is surprising that private donations to Hungarian relief are not what they were expected to be. We love fighters for liberty but we are burdened by the high cost of living and the brutality of taxes.

The real reason for delayed action, however, is that there are too many organizations in the field and too much confusion. If we are to give to the Hungarians we want to be sure that they and nobody else get whatever it is that we give.

The American Red Cross would normally be the right organization to take hold, but the American Red Cross is in a contractual relationship with the International Red Cross which operates out of Switzerland. While it is true that the Hungarian communists will not permit American relief to come into Hungary under the American flag, it is equally true that Americans do not want any of their contributions to fall into the hands of the Hungarian Red Cross which is a Communist-controlled organization, as all organizations are in Soviet countries.

Unfortunately for the people of any Communist country, the government owns everything in the country, including the organizations of the people. That is exactly what the heroic Hungarians are fighting against.

The danger is that American relief would, under such circumstances, be used for political purposes by Hungarian Communists. The Swiss who go in as inspectors would be helpless, except that they could a year or two from now publish a report saying how bad the Hungarian Communists are, something that has been demonstrated for all the world to see. Nobody or hardly anybody would pay the slightest attention to their report.

Of course, much work can be done in Austria among the refugees and in Vienna, there is no reason why American relief should not fly the American flag. But this is only a part of the relief problem. Food, medicines and clothes must be sent into Hungary for the people there who have heroically fought tanks with their fists and have not lost the battle.

It may be possible to get such items into Hungary through the International Red Cross with some small supervision and if the gamble is worthy anything, it is worth taking in the hope that some others than Communist party members will benefit, but it is a long chance because Communists in action are brutal partisans even using food for children to achieve their wicked ends.

Meanwhile, the people inside Hungary feel deserted and friendless and are fighting for their soil until all are killed which butcher Zhukov is as capable of doing as Stalin had millions killed in the Ukraine. Zhukov has been advertised in this country as an approximate gentleman because he knew Eisenhower in World War II, but there is nothing in the record to establish his gentility.

Herbert Hoover managed relief expeditions during and after World War I and always under the American flag. Lenin admitted the American Relief Administration into Russia to perform exactly such services as need now to be done in Hungary.

The Russian relief was a tremendous success despite numerous difficulties, both physical and political. The Bolsheviks were naturally very suspicious of the ARA but they were also very hungry. The American Relief Administration was able to raise and expend $61,566,231.53 in Soviet Russia to save a people who were starving. Americans worked inside Russia and flew the American flag.

At the time that the ARA went into Russia, it was looking after 3,500,000 children in 10 countries, always as Americans. No disguise was necessary to hide the origin of the aid. It is interesting that in the correspondence between Maxim Gorky and Herbert Hoover, the latter stipulated:

"That American representatives of the Relief Administration shall be given full liberty to come and go and move about Russia.

"That these members shall be allowed to organize the necessary local committees and local assistance free from governmental interference."

Perhaps there was more courage in those days even when one wanted to serve the hungry and broken. Today, when we are so powerful, we seem to be afraid of our own shadows. Indeed, we pay for Swiss and Swedes to supervise American aid.

Child's Knock-Knees No Cause for Worry

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

This deformity, common in children between the ages of two and six, is usually overcome with little or no treatment. Adults are seldom afflicted.

In fact, a British orthopedist, Dr. F. C. Durbin, contends that knock-knee "might almost be regarded as a normal phase in childhood."

The most common cause of this deformity in youngsters is a delay in acquiring postural muscle reflexes. However, any pathological condition of ligaments, muscles or bone may be the cause of this disorder, which doctors call genu valgum.

It may be wise to consult an orthopedist if you are worried about your youngster's legs and feet. But there are things you can do to help correct this muscular deficiency at home.

Dr. Durbin, an expert on the subject, gives several suggestions for parents to follow in a recent issue of "The Practitioner."

For one thing, don't let your child assume harmful postures while sitting or eating. Don't permit him to sit on the floor on his heels with his feet rotated outward. Dr. Durbin has found this particular position is very common among youngsters viewing television.

Your child must not stand with his feet apart and turned out. Don't take him on long walks or on shopping tours unless you have a stroller, buggy or some other device in which he can ride when he becomes tired.

Keep him off scooters, but encourage him to run about normally and to use tricycles, bicycles and other pedal toys.

Dr. Durbin also recommends letting a knock-kneed youngster sit astride a rocking horse frequently, remarking: "Who has ever seen a knock-kneed jockey?"

QUESTION AND ANSWER

B. M.: Would it be possible for me to have a sandpaper operation to remove blotches and small holes left by a skin disease which has been cured?

Answer: This depends upon the type of skin disease.

Certain cases of acne scars have been benefitted by the sandpaper treatment, but it takes skill to perform it.

Each is a hotel with ocean front rooms renting for $40 a day up during the winter season and suites for $100 a day up. A famous couple during a two-week stay in a flossy penthouse ran up a bill of $6,000—more than a lot of people spend in an entire year.

In European cities tourists visit cathedrals, museums and palaces. Miami Beach is perhaps the only city in the world which has guided tours of hotel lobbies, each more splendid than the last.

Here a bartender gets about $60 a week in salary and $140 or more in tips. A dishwasher can make up to $90 a week. Since few tourists come out to the kitchen to tip the dishwasher, he gets to keep any stray raw oyster pearls the guests overlook.

Miami Beach has 381 hotels, 360 restaurants and night clubs, 19 churches and synagogues, 2,200 apartment buildings, 6,000 private residences, two municipal golf courses, 10 parks, a free fishing pier, eight miles of beach and 416 swimming pools.

It has 9 public schools and 50 private schools!

What doesn't Miami Beach have? It doesn't have a cemetery.

It doesn't have a railroad station, a slum, a gambling hall, a place where you can buy a five-cent hot dog, or a pawn shop.

The Hungarian Relief Problem

By George Sokolsky

Americans are generous and they give freely to good causes. This is particularly true during the Christmas season. Therefore, it is surprising that private donations to Hungarian relief are not what they were expected to be. We love fighters for liberty but we are burdened by the high cost of living and the brutality of taxes.

The real reason for delayed action, however, is that there are too many organizations in the field and too much confusion. If we are to give to the Hungarians we want to be sure that they and nobody else get whatever it is that we give.

The American Red Cross would normally be the right organization to take hold, but the American Red Cross is in a contractual relationship with the International Red Cross which operates out of Switzerland. While it is true that the Hungarian communists will not permit American relief to come into Hungary under the American flag, it is equally true that Americans do not want any of their contributions to fall into the hands of the Hungarian Red Cross which is a Communist-controlled organization, as all organizations are in Soviet countries.

Unfortunately for the people of any Communist country, the government owns everything in the country, including the organizations of the people. That is exactly what the heroic Hungarians are fighting against.

The danger is that American relief would, under such circumstances, be used for political purposes by Hungarian Communists. The Swiss who go in as inspectors would be helpless, except that they could a year or two from now publish a report saying how bad the Hungarian Communists are, something that has been demonstrated for all the world to see. Nobody or hardly anybody would pay the slightest attention to their report.

Of course, much work can be done in Austria among the refugees and in Vienna, there is no reason why American relief should not fly the American flag. But this is only a part of the relief problem. Food, medicines and clothes must be sent into Hungary for the people there who have heroically fought tanks with their fists and have not lost the battle.

It may be possible to get such items into Hungary through the International Red Cross with some small supervision and if the gamble is worthy anything, it is worth taking in the hope that some others than Communist party members will benefit, but it is a long chance because Communists in action are brutal partisans even using food for children to achieve their wicked ends.

Meanwhile, the people inside Hungary feel deserted and friendless and are fighting for their soil until all are killed which butcher Zhukov is as capable of doing as Stalin had millions killed in the Ukraine. Zhukov has been advertised in this country as an approximate gentleman because he knew Eisenhower in World War II, but there is nothing in the record to establish his gentility.

Herbert Hoover managed relief expeditions during and after World War I and always under the American flag. Lenin admitted the American Relief Administration into Russia to perform exactly such services as need now to be done in Hungary.

The Russian relief was a tremendous success despite numerous difficulties, both physical and political. The Bolsheviks were naturally very suspicious of the ARA but they were also very hungry. The American Relief Administration was able to raise and expend $61,566,231.53 in Soviet Russia to save a people who were starving. Americans worked inside Russia and flew the American flag.

At the time that the ARA went into Russia, it was looking after 3,500,000 children in 10 countries, always as Americans. No disguise was necessary to hide the origin of the aid. It is interesting that in the correspondence between Maxim Gorky and Herbert Hoover, the latter stipulated:

"That American representatives of the Relief Administration shall be given full liberty to come and go and move about Russia.

"That these members shall be allowed to organize the necessary local committees and local assistance free from governmental interference."

Perhaps there was more courage in those days even when one wanted to serve the hungry and broken. Today, when we are so powerful, we seem to be afraid of our own shadows. Indeed, we pay for Swiss and Swedes to supervise American aid.

Child's Knock-Knees No Cause for Worry

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

This deformity, common in children between the ages of two and six, is usually overcome with little or no treatment. Adults are seldom afflicted.

In fact, a British orthopedist, Dr. F. C. Durbin, contends that knock-knee "might almost be regarded as a normal phase in childhood."

The most common cause of this deformity in youngsters is a delay in acquiring postural muscle reflexes. However, any pathological condition of ligaments, muscles or bone may be the cause of this disorder, which doctors call genu valgum.

It may be wise to consult an orthopedist if you are worried about your youngster's legs and feet. But there are things you can do to help correct this muscular deficiency at home.

Dr. Durbin, an expert on the subject, gives several suggestions for parents to follow in a recent issue of "The Practitioner."

For one thing, don't let your child assume harmful postures while sitting or eating. Don't permit him to sit on the floor on his heels with his feet rotated outward. Dr. Durbin has found this particular position is very common among youngsters viewing television.

Your child must not stand with his feet apart and turned out. Don't take him on long walks or on shopping tours unless you have a stroller, buggy or some other device in which he can ride when he becomes tired.

Keep him off scooters, but encourage him to run about normally and to use tricycles, bicycles and other pedal toys.

Dr. Durbin also recommends letting a knock-kneed youngster sit astride a rocking horse frequently, remarking: "Who has ever seen a knock-kneed jockey?"

Middletown Ups Pay to Teachers

MIDDLETOWN (AP)—The board of education here has increased the pay of public school teachers an average of 13.6 per cent, effective Dec. 31.

Under the new scale, teachers with bachelor degrees will start at $3,900, with a top pay of $5,800. The present minimum is $3,300 with a maximum of $5,120. The new maximum pay would be reached after 14 years' teaching.

Teachers with master's degrees will start at $4,200, with a top of $6,100. The present scale is $3,600 to $5,420.

Yule Tree Erected For 'Homeless'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The owner of a little delicatessen in a crowded part of downtown Philadelphia bought one of the biggest trees he could find, set it up on a patch of ground alongside the store, and decorated it beautifully.

Then among the ornaments, the lights and silver, he placed a sign: "This tree is for all people who are homeless or who have no Christmas tree of their own."

Hubbies Hug--and Pay!

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The price squeeze appears to be on the squeeze price according to hospital records. Last August it cost a 50-year-old Richmond woman $13 for repairs to a cracked rib she received when hugged too enthusiastically by her husband. And now the hospital reports a 48-year-old woman has been treated for the same trouble, caused the same way. But her will was $18.

You Need The Church-The Church Needs You

...this Christmas, in Bethlehem of Judea, in America and throughout the world. It is Hallelujah! And the bright star of hope has never shone brighter as we commemorate the birth of our Lord. The shepherd keeps watch o'er his flock as multiplied millions prepare to break the cover from gifts made possible through thought and treasure of others. As carols roll out across the night breeze in reverence to His name, may we never forget to thank God for Jesus, and for liberty and freedom to worship the Christ Child. His "name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace."

Middletown Ups Pay to Teachers

MIDDLETOWN (AP)—The board of education here has increased the pay of public school teachers an average of 13.6 per cent, effective Dec. 31.

Under the new scale, teachers with bachelor degrees will start at $3,900, with a top pay of $5,800. The present minimum is $3,300 with a maximum of $5,120. The new maximum pay would be reached after 14 years' teaching.

Teachers with master's degrees will start at $4,200, with a top of $6,100. The present scale is $3,600 to $5,420.

Yule Tree Erected For 'Homeless'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The owner of a little delicatessen in a crowded part of downtown Philadelphia bought one of the biggest trees he could find, set it up on a patch of ground alongside the store, and decorated it beautifully.

Then among the ornaments, the lights and silver, he placed a sign: "This tree is for all people who are homeless or who have no Christmas tree of their own."

Hubbies Hug--and Pay!

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The price squeeze appears to be on the squeeze price according to hospital records. Last August it cost a 50-year-old Richmond woman $13 for repairs to a cracked rib she received when hugged too enthusiastically by her husband. And now the hospital reports a 48-year-old woman has been treated for the same trouble, caused the same way. But her will was $18.

You Need The Church-The Church Needs You

...this Christmas, in Bethlehem of Judea, in America and throughout the world. It is Hallelujah! And the bright star of hope has never shone brighter as we commemorate the birth of our Lord. The shepherd keeps watch o'er his flock as multiplied millions prepare to break the cover from gifts made possible through thought and treasure of others. As carols roll out across the night breeze in reverence to His name, may we never forget to thank God for Jesus, and for liberty and freedom to worship the Christ Child. His "name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace."

A Christmas Greeting to Our Wonderful Community
Another Christmas Season is here. Each year we pause to give thanks to God for our many blessings; our houses, our families, our friends, our community, State and Nation.

We think of loved ones who have gone on and brush away a tear as we place a Christmas Wreath upon their graves.

We have faith in the future. In the ability of our people to carry on our fine traditions. Faith in our children to do greater and finer things than we have done.

We sincerely wish all our customers and friends all the success and happiness possible at this Christmas time and for the New Year.

Top Rankings Prove Hazard To Collegians

Kansas State Spilled; North Carolina Given Scare in New York

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's beginning to look as if a place of honor in the national college basketball rankings is more a kiss of death than a pat on the back.

Continuing the trend of a week that began with San Francisco's first loss in two years, 10th-rated Kansas State was spilled Thursday night by Minnesota, two members of the Associated Press poll's second 10 were beaten, and even North Carolina, No. 3, had the scare of its life before finally struggling to its sixth straight victory.

The North Carolina Tar Heels, playing at Madison Square Garden, wound up a 64-59 winner over so-so New York University, but only after Bob Cunningham and reserve Joe Quibb had rushed to the rescue of the Carolina ace, Len Rosenbluth, who was held without a field goal for the first 30 minutes and wound up with only nine points.

Minnesota also sprung a couple of unsung players to hand K-State its first loss after four wins, 80-72. Buck Lindsley, with a five-point average, scored 21, and George Hanson added 18 to overbalance a 33-point show by State's Jack Parr.

Alabama, rated 17th, was handed a 73-50 shellacking by unranked Wake Forest, and La Salle, also unsighted in the rankings, caused North Carolina State (19) its third loss 83-76.

St. Bonaventure, regularly among the best in the East, lost its first in four 64-63 to Iona (N.Y.) on an over-the-head shot by Joe Bernardi with 10 seconds to play. Indiana, an easy winner over La Salle earlier in the week, was beaten by Villanova 79-69. Nebraska, which dumped strong Purdue from the unbeaten list a couple days ago, needed Don Smidt's one-hander from midcourt with three seconds left to nip much-beaten Texas Tech 67-66.

There were, of course, a few signs of normalcy.

Texas Christian, back home after road losses to St. Louis and Wichita, burst into a 30-6 lead and with all regulars hitting double figures, walloped Abilene Christian 81-41.

South Carolina, which carried North Carolina into overtime before losing last Saturday, defeated Georgia Tech 90-83 behind a 37-point job by Grady Wallace. Bradley, trailing 18-6 at one point, overcame Wisconsin 74-62, and Oklahoma City, tied for 15th in the AP ratings, got a school record of 43 points from Hubert Reed in a 91-74 decision over San Jose State.

Chicago Loyola made it six out of seven in an 89-72 romp over North Dakota, and two free throws by Junior Born with five seconds left enabled Tulsa to defeat Detroit, 75-74 in a Missouri Valley Conference game.

Ortega Slated To Test DeMarco

NEW YORK (AP)—If Gaspar Ortega repeats his upset victory over Tony DeMarco in tonight's televised rematch at Madison Square Garden, it will be time to take seriously the challenge of the lanky Mexican welterweight.

Ortega's split decision over the former champion in their Nov. 23 bout resulted in a revision of the 147-pound ratings. Both Ring and the National Boxing Assn. promptly awarded Ortega the No. 4 post among Carmen Basilio's challengers. DeMarco remained No. 1 with the NBA but slipped to second in the Ring.

66 2-Minute Miles Chalked During 1956

COLUMBUS—A total of 66 two-minute miles—second highest single season mark in history—was registered by trotters and pacers during the 1956 season, the U. S. Trotting Association reported today.

The figure was up by five over last year and only four short of the all-time record set in 1953. The "two-minute list" is harness racing's most distinguished honor roll and this year's total was accounted for by but 45 of the 14,622 horses that actually raced.

Numerical leader was the 4-year-old pacer Duane Hanover who connected six times with the fastest in 1:58. The son of Knight Dream is owned by Pine Acres Farm of Garden City, N. Y., and was handled by Billy Haughton. Only trotter to score more than once was Horse-of-the-Year Scott Frost who won in sub-2:00 time on three occasions.

The year's fastest horse was the 4-year-old pacing mare Dottie's Pick, timed in 1:56.4 in a California time trial. Sharing honors as the fastest trotters were Prince Victor and Galophone, both clocked in 1:58.1.

Eleven trotters and 35 pacers made up the 1956 honor roll with the former contributing 13 of the miles and the pacers 53.

One of the most outstanding feats was that of the 2-year-old pacer Torpid who accounted for three 2:00 miles, including one in 1:58, a new world's record for that age. Torpid is the only 2-year-old ever to beat 2:00 on more than one occasion. Only seven 2-year-olds, two trotters and five pacers, have ever entered the list.

Lakers Gaining On Rochester '5'

NEW YORK (AP)—Thanks to big Clyde Lovellette and a last minute rally, the Minneapolis Lakers were within one-half game of the leading Rochester Royals in the Western Division of the National Basketball Assn. today.

Lovellette poured in 33 points Thursday night as the Lakers edged Rochester 105-103 at Albany, N. Y., in the only league activity. The triumph gave Minneapolis a 13-13 record. The Royals are 14-13.

Crippled Warriors Lose to Kingston

Madison Mills' Warriors lost their eighth game in 10 starts when they met Kingston Thursday night on the Bloomingburg court, but the Warriors deserve a lot of credit for trying.

The score was 83-61.

The Warriors have been having tough luck all season, losing games by two and three point margins. Against Kingston they also were plagued with injuries. Of their seven first - stringers, Harv McClary has been out all week with an upset stomach, and Mike Swyers had to sit out with a pulled muscle after one quarter of play.

Swyers had scored eight points in eight minutes when he pulled a muscle in his hip, leaving Coach Tolman Mills with a five-man squad including Ray Williams who had played in the reserve game.

* * *

DESPITE the lack of manpower, the Warriors matched Kingston's running game, and in the second quarter outscored the winners, 23-22. But the pace was too much for five men to handle as Kingston's 6-3 center, Bevers, tipped in score after score.

Swyers, at 6-1, had been counted on to stop Bevers, and when he went out, the Kingston center went on to score 16 field goals and 35 points.

Kingston sent in five substitutes and kept the game moving swiftly — too swiftly for the tiring Warriors. While Kingston used 10 players in the varsity game, Madison Mills had only 13 men for both the varsity and reserve games.

However, the Warriors managed to take the reserve match, 52-24, as Ray Williams hit 15 and Earl Williams, 13. The Reserves now have a season record of 8 and 2.

Lions Cubs Lose At Chillicothe

The Washington Junior High five ran into a lot of height and some good shooting when they met Chillicothe West Fifth Thursday afternoon. The Chillicothe team won 30-25.

Besides being an unusually good junior high team, West Fifth also had the advantage of being accustomed to their small home court.

The Lion Cubs started slowly in the strange surroundings and were not able to close the gap. High scorers for Washington were Aaron Foster, 8, Gene Pavey, 5, Gilbert Krause and Dave Reno, 4 each.

For the winners, Patterson had 10, Stout, 6 and Lemley, 6.

Chillicothe West Fifth now has a 4 and 0 record and the Lions Cubs are 3 and 2.

Fuentes Upsets Gavilan in Bout

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Underdog Ramon Fuentes kept up a bristling attack to upset former world welterweight champion Kid Gavilan of Cuba in a split 10-round decision at Olympic Auditorium Thursday night.

Referee Tommy Hart and Judge Frankie Van both turned in cards favoring Fuentes, 96-95. Judge Mushy Callahan had it Gavilan, 98-92.

West Virginia '5' Tops College List

NEW YORK (AP)—West Virginia Tech, the only college basketball team to average 100 points a game for two full seasons, again has taken the scoring lead among the nation's small colleges.

NCAA service bureau statistics disclosed today that West Virginia Tech has scored 583 points in five games for a pace-setting average of 116.6 a game. Tech tallied at the rate of 107.5 points a game in 1954 and 100.5 a game last season.

Snider Wins NL Slugging Title

Joe Adcock of Milwaukee was next to Snider with a .597 mark in the averages based on total bases divided by total at bats. Others near the top were Henry Aaaron of Milwaukee and Frank Robinson of Cincinnati, .558 each, and Willie Mays of New York .557.

Snider also showed the way in total walks 99, including a new record of 26 intentional passes.

No-Windup Pitching Seen On Increase

NEW YORK (AP)—Yogi Berra expects to see several pitchers following the lead of Don Larsen and Bob Turley, his New York Yankee teammates, by trying to pitch without a windup next season.

Berra was at Yankee Stadium Thursday with Whitey Ford, leading American League pitcher, to sign their 1957 contracts.

It was reported that Berra will be paid $58,000 and Ford about $35,000.

"A pitcher has got to be a big fellow to get away with that no windup," said Berra. "He's got to have good natural stuff like Larsen or Turley.

"And a sinker ball pitcher couldn't get by without his windup. I should think a fellow might hurt his arm that way. But they know more than I do about it."

Ford, whose 19-6 record for a .760 percentage was tops in the league along with his 2.47 earned run average, will have no part of the no-windup school.

"Not for me," he said. "That's for those big guys."

Berra and Ford were the first two Yanks to sign, accepting what General Manager George Weiss called "good raises."

Weiss said Yankee contracts had not been sent out but would go into the mail between Christmas and New Year's. He said Berra and Ford live nearby and "happened to drop in."

The weed tree, scorned as a nuisance in Canada, is now discovered to be a valuable source for newsprint and corrugated board.

Top Rankings Prove Hazard To Collegians

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's beginning to look as if a place of honor in the national college basketball rankings is more a kiss of death than a pat on the back.

Continuing the trend of a week that began with San Francisco's first loss in two years, 10th-rated Kansas State was spilled Thursday night by Minnesota, two members of the Associated Press poll's second 10 were beaten, and even North Carolina, No. 3, had the scare of its life before finally struggling to its sixth straight victory.

The North Carolina Tar Heels, playing at Madison Square Garden, wound up a 64-59 winner over so-so New York University, but only after Bob Cunningham and reserve Joe Quibb had rushed to the rescue of the Carolina ace, Len Rosenbluth, who was held without a field goal for the first 30 minutes and wound up with only nine points.

Minnesota also sprung a couple of unsung players to hand K-State its first loss after four wins, 80-72. Buck Lindsley, with a five-point average, scored 21, and George Hanson added 18 to overbalance a 33-point show by State's Jack Parr.

Alabama, rated 17th, was handed a 73-50 shellacking by unranked Wake Forest, and La Salle, also unsighted in the rankings, caused North Carolina State (19) its third loss 83-76.

St. Bonaventure, regularly among the best in the East, lost its first in four 64-63 to Iona (N.Y.) on an over-the-head shot by Joe Bernardi with 10 seconds to play. Indiana, an easy winner over La Salle earlier in the week, was beaten by Villanova 79-69. Nebraska, which dumped strong Purdue from the unbeaten list a couple days ago, needed Don Smidt's one-hande. from midcourt with three seconds left to nip much-beaten Texas Tech 67-66.

There were, of course, a few signs of normalcy.

Texas Christian, back home after road losses to St. Louis and Wichita, burst into a 30-6 lead and with all regulars hitting double figures, walloped Abilene Christian 81-41.

South Carolina, which carried North Carolina into overtime before losing last Saturday, defeated Georgia Tech 90-83 behind a 37-point job by Grady Wallace. Bradley, trailing 18-6 at one point, overcame Wisconsin 74-62, and Oklahoma City, tied for 15th in the AP ratings, got a school record of 43 points from Hubert Reed in a 91-74 decision over San Jose State.

Chicago Loyola made it six out of seven in an 89-72 romp over North Dakota, and two free throws by Junior Born with five seconds left enabled Tulsa to defeat Detroit, 75-74 in a Missouri Valley Conference game.

Ortega Slated To Test DeMarco

NEW YORK (AP)—If Gaspar Ortega repeats his upset victory over Tony DeMarco in tonight's televised rematch at Madison Square Garden, it will be time to take seriously the challenge of the lanky Mexican welterweight.

Ortega's split decision over the former champion in their Nov. 23 bout resulted in a revision of the 147-pound ratings. Both Ring and the National Boxing Assn. promptly awarded Ortega the No. 4 post among Carmen Basilio's challengers. DeMarco remained No. 1 with the NBA but slipped to second in the Ring.

Swyers had scored eight points in eight minutes when he pulled a muscle in his hip, leaving Coach Tolman Mills with a five-man squad including Ray Williams who had played in the reserve game.

* * *

DESPITE the lack of manpower, the Warriors matched Kingston's running game, and in the second quarter outscored the winners, 23-22. But the pace was too much for five men to handle as Kingston's 6-3 center, Bevers, tipped in score after score.

Swyers, at 6-1, had been counted on to stop Bevers, and when he went out, the Kingston center went on to score 16 field goals and 35 points.

Kingston sent in five substitutes and kept the game moving swiftly — too swiftly for the tiring Warriors. While Kingston used 10 players in the varsity game, Madison Mills had only 13 men for both the varsity and reserve games.

However, the Warriors managed to take the reserve match, 52-24, as Ray Williams hit 15 and Earl Williams, 13. The Reserves now have a season record of 8 and 2.

Lions Cubs Lose At Chillicothe

The Washington Junior High five ran into a lot of height and some good shooting when they met Chillicothe West Fifth Thursday afternoon. The Chillicothe team won 30-25.

Besides being an unusually good junior high team, West Fifth also had the advantage of being accustomed to their small home court.

The Lion Cubs started slowly in the strange surroundings and were not able to close the gap. High scorers for Washington were Aaron Foster, 8, Gene Pavey, 5, Gilbert Krause and Dave Reno, 4 each.

For the winners, Patterson had 10, Stout, 6 and Lemley, 6.

Chillicothe West Fifth now has a 4 and 0 record and the Lions Cubs are 3 and 2.

Fuentes Upsets Gavilan in Bout

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Underdog Ramon Fuentes kept up a bristling attack to upset former world welterweight champion Kid Gavilan of Cuba in a split 10-round decision at Olympic Auditorium Thursday night.

Referee Tommy Hart and Judge Frankie Van both turned in cards favoring Fuentes, 96-95. Judge Mushy Callahan had it Gavilan, 98-92.

West Virginia '5' Tops College List

NEW YORK (AP)—West Virginia Tech, the only college basketball team to average 100 points a game for two full seasons, again has taken the scoring lead among the nation's small colleges.

NCAA service bureau statistics disclosed today that West Virginia Tech has scored 583 points in five games for a pace-setting average of 116.6 a game. Tech tallied at the rate of 107.5 points a game in 1954 and 100.5 a game last season.

Snider Wins NL Slugging Title

Joe Adcock of Milwaukee was next to Snider with a .597 mark in the averages based on total bases divided by total at bats. Others near the top were Henry Aaaron of Milwaukee and Frank Robinson of Cincinnati, .558 each, and Willie Mays of New York .557.

Snider also showed the way in total walks 99, including a new record of 26 intentional passes.

No-Windup Pitching Seen On Increase

NEW YORK (AP)—Yogi Berra expects to see several pitchers following the lead of Don Larsen and Bob Turley, his New York Yankee teammates, by trying to pitch without a windup next season.

It was reported that Berra will be paid $58,000 and Ford about $35,000.

"A pitcher has got to be a big fellow to get away with that no windup," said Berra. "He's got to have good natural stuff like Larsen or Turley.

"And a sinker ball pitcher couldn't get by without his windup. I should think a fellow might hurt his arm that way. But they know more than I do about it."

Ford, whose 19-6 record for a .760 percentage was tops in the league along with his 2.47 earned run average, will have no part of the no-windup school.

"Not for me," he said. "That's for those big guys."

Berra and Ford were the first two Yanks to sign, accepting what General Manager George Weiss called "good raises."

Weiss said Yankee contracts had not been sent out but would go into the mail between Christmas and New Year's. He said Berra and Ford live nearby and "happened to drop in."

The weed tree, scorned as a nuisance in Canada, is now discovered to be a valuable source for newsprint and corrugated board.

Ohio College Cagers Head For Tourneys

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio basketball moves into a holiday schedule beginning this weekend as 13 colleges enter a wide scattering of tournaments.

With 27 college teams idle, however, basketball activity will generally be light over the holidays.

Ohio's cage teams will play in a total of 10 tournaments. Here's the schedule:

Dayton goes to Lexington, Ky., for the University of Kentucky Invitational. A week later, the Flyers head for Louisville and the Blue Grass Festival.

The University of Cincinnati will be playing host this weekend in the Cincinnati Invitational.

In another state tournament, Akron will play host to Denison, Mt. Union and Wooster at the Akron Invitational Dec. 28-29.

Ohio University's unbeaten Bobcats will go to Johnson City, Tenn., this weekend, to compete in the Watagua Invitational.

Dec. 26-27, Muskingum will be in Terre Haute, Ind., for the Midwest Tournament.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Sabina Public Utilities Sale Center of Legal Tug-of-War

SABINA — To sell or not to sell. . .that is the question facing the Sabina Council and the village Board of Public Affairs.

In the center of the legal tug-of-war between the two official bodies are the municipal electric and water systems.

Some time ago, Council passed an ordinance ordering the sale of the two village - owned utilities, but the Board of Public Affairs, which administers them, opposed it, contending its consent is necessary before the two systems can be disposed of.

The differences of opinion wound up in Clinton County Common Pleas Court with a request by council for a declaratory judgement to determine whether it or the Board of Public Affairs has the authority to sell the utilities.

The board countered with a demurrer.

* * *

ON ADVICE of its attorneys, Peck, Shaffer and Williams, of Cincinnati, Council at its last meeting passed two resolutions calling for the sale of the two utilities systems. They were approved by the five votes of Wendell Briggs, Howard Thompson, Cecil Anders, George Dunn and Clarence Elzey. President of Council Clem Pollard did not vote.

Both Council and the board agree that the village needs additional power for expanding industry. The board, by resolution, asked Council to authorize the board to ascertain from the Dayton Power & Light Co. the requirement, prices and possible contract for wholesale purchase of power at the village limits and report to Council as soon as possible.

Council returned the proposed resolution to the board with the explanation that no action was taken on it because the demurrer has not yet been acted upon by the court.

The letter to the board also stated that Council had passed a resolution authorizing the village clerk to advertise the electric and water plants for sale.

Speech Therapy Classes Start Jan. 8

A project which for several years has been on the agenda of the Fayette County Crippled Children's Society, is to be started here Tuesday, Jan. 8, under sponsorship and financing of that organization.

Classes of pupils from elementary grades of both city and county schools will be organized at that time for instruction in speech correction.

This was announced at a meeting Thursday of the county's crippled children's organization, with both Supt. W. A. Smith of the city schools and Supt. W. H. Hilty of the county schools, present. The meeting was held in the Board of Elections room at the Courthouse.

Teachers of both the city and county schools will cooperate with the Crippled Children's Society in arrangements for referring those school children who can be benefited by the training, to Prof. Robert E. Patterson, speech therapist from the Speech and Hearing Clinic at Ohio State University. He has been engaged to come here for one day per week, probably over a 30-week period.

* * *

THE CLASSES will start work in a room provided at East Side School. If later developments warrant any advantageous shifting of some classes to a rural school without loss of time in the work planned, this may be considered.

The first step to be taken by Prof. Patterson will be a screening process to determine which school children referred to him by the teachers, can be definitely benefited.

Those children with organic difficulties who require special extra attention may not be admitted to these first classes. Probably they or their parents, will be advised of the better opportunities afforded in visiting the special clinic at Ohio State University.

It was pointed out by Prof. Patterson that about 30 children can be handled in the first class, with others screened being placed on a reserve list to take places of any who may be "graduated" after a few weeks from the original class, or those who may not be able to attend regularly for other reasons.

* * *

THE FIRST GROUP to be screened will consist of approximately 40 children, 20 from each of the city and county school systems. From this number the starting class of 30 will be made up.

The pupils will be divided into groups of five or six. Each group will undergo instruction from Prof. Patterson for a period of at least one hour one day each week.

Crippled Children's Society officials say their organization hopes this undertaking can be expanded in the future with the eventual idea goal of incorporating it into the public schools as a permanent program.

Supt. Smith made the statement that there are probably at least 200 pupils in the city schools needing this type of corrective training.

Supt. Smith made the statement that are probably at least 200 pupils in the city schools needing this type of corrective training.

He further said that school officials very much appreciate the Crippled Children's Society's efforts in making a start of this work at this time and that he believes that at least 40 children within the next year will be helped.

This, he declared offered a hope that the importance of the move will be sufficiently recognized to an extent that the work can be made to cover many more children in the future.

Greenfeld Slayer Indicted For First Degree Murder

HILLSBORO — A Highland County grand jury returned a first degree murder indictment against Robert Lee Curtis Thursday in the robbery — stabbing of Durward (Bud) Perry on Dec. 8 near Greenfield.

The grand jury, the first in six years to consider such a charge in Highland County, also indicted Curtis on another count, perpetration of robbery. Curtis, a former Fayette County laborer, will be arraigned at 10 a. m. Saturday before Judge Darrell Hottle.

Curtis, 22, admitted to police that he stabbed Perry, a 51-year-old Greenfield cab owner and operator, robbed him of $9, and threw him from the cab along the Creek Rd. south of Greenfield. Curtis wrecked the cab a short time later and was apprehended in an hour and a half at a farm house where he had gone to call another cab.

He pleaded guilty to the murder charge at a preliminary hearing before a justice of the peace, and is being held in county jail without bond.

First Day of Winter Is Just Like Spring

Friday, the first day of winter, was a nice spring day, so to speak.

Winter officially arrives at 4 p. m. today, but the weather was anything else but winter-like, for the mercury hovered around 51 throughout the night after a minimum of 44 and a maximum of 52 Thursday.

At 8 a. m. Friday the recording thermometer at the local weather station showed 52 degrees, with indications the mercury would mount 5 to 10 degrees during the day.

The mild weather is expected to continue over Saturday, when a low of 38 and high of 50 is anticipated.

The "Paint Valley Prophet" has not been consulted about that white Christmas, but the present outlook is none too favorable.

A year ago this morning the mercury was down to 15 degrees and the maximum during the day was 28 degrees.

Boy Wrecks Car, Then Kills Self

Birthday Party For Jesus Lauded

TROY, N. Y. (AP) — Eleven-year-old Linda Coons wrote to the Troy Record that she had held a "birthday party" for the "Baby Jesus" every year since she heard the Christmas story in first grade five years ago.

The Coons family has a birthday cake each Christmas and sings "Happy Birthday" instead of saying grace.

Linda wondered whether she was "too big" to continue the custom.

The newspaper replied editorially that there's "nobody too old" for such an observance, and "too many of us forget what Christmas means." Linda's idea is worth copying, the editorial said.

3 Women Thieves Given Warnings

PORTSMOUTH (AP) — Municipal Judge Lowell Thompson has warned a 71-year-old grandmother, her daughter-in-law and a third woman to stay out of Ohio for three years or spend four months apiece in jail.

The warning came Thursday as Judge Thompson ordered the Slayersville, Ky., trio jailed for 30 days for what police said was the biggest shoplifting spree in the history of Portsmouth.

Mrs. Nell Williams, the grandmother; Mrs. Ivy Williams, 42, the daughter-in-law and mother of five, and Mrs. Ernestine Arnett, a relative and mother of two, were charged with shoplifting hundreds of dollars worth of merchandise.

Sabina Public Utilities Sale Center of Legal Tug-of-War

SABINA — To sell or not to sell. . .that is the question facing the Sabina Council and the village Board of Public Affairs.

In the center of the legal tug-of-war between the two official bodies are the municipal electric and water systems.

Some time ago, Council passed an ordinance ordering the sale of the two village - owned utilities, but the Board of Public Affairs, which administers them, opposed it, contending its consent is necessary before the two systems can be disposed of.

The differences of opinion wound up in Clinton County Common Pleas Court with a request by council for a declaratory judgement to determine whether it or the Board of Public Affairs has the authority to sell the utilities.

The board countered with a demurrer.

* * *

ON ADVICE of its attorneys, Peck, Shaffer and Williams, of Cincinnati, Council at its last meeting passed two resolutions calling for the sale of the two utilities systems. They were approved by the five votes of Wendell Briggs, Howard Thompson, Cecil Anders, George Dunn and Clarence Elzey. President of Council Clem Pollard did not vote.

Both Council and the board agree that the village needs additional power for expanding industry. The board, by resolution, asked Council to authorize the board to ascertain from the Dayton Power & Light Co. the requirement, prices and possible contract for wholesale purchase of power at the village limits and report to Council as soon as possible.

Council returned the proposed resolution to the board with the explanation that no action was taken on it because the demurrer has not yet been acted upon by the court.

The letter to the board also stated that Council had passed a resolution authorizing the village clerk to advertise the electric and water plants for sale.

'Bad King John' Back in News As Engineers Seek His Treasure

By M. E. BYRNE
(Central Press Association)

Somewhere in the murky depths of the Wash, on the Norfolk coast of England, there should be a tidy treasure of some four million dollars worth of jewels, gold and silver.

If there isn't, then a team of British electrical engineers is off on the wildest goose chase of the year.

The costly baubles supposedly have lain there for some 740 years or ever since bad old King John went thataway back in 1216 en route to a roughouse with his old enemies, the barons.

The treasure was part of the baggage train attached to the king's forces. The loot consisted of jeweled swords and scepters, two jeweled gold crowns, silver and golden shrines and a collection of many silver cups.

Enshrouded in mist and fog the royal train crept across a narrow causeway until suddenly the inrushing tide swept around, then over it, the surging waters engulfing men, horses and wagons.

* * *

IN ONE screaming, bellowing mass the entire baggage train vanished into the mist and has been lost to sight ever since. What the engineers today are trying to find is the site of the causeway which, in turn, disappeared many years ago.

King John displays the Magna Carta.

While the barons were happy to learn of the king's misfortune, they would have been even more delighted if the royal rascal had gone overboard along with his treasure because John probably was the most despised character that ever sat on the English throne.

By the sheerest stroke of luck, the king wasn't with the army when it met disaster. As it neared the Wash the monarch left his troops, to attend to some matter of state which required his immediate attention.

John seems to have made a lifelong policy of being obnoxious. Even as a youngster he was far from a bargain— conniving and scheming in the best—or worst—juvenile delinquent tradition.

As happens so often in the case of bad boys, John's father, King Henry II, was a kindly, doting parent who thought Johnny boy was just about the grandest guy to come down the pike until he learned the opposite was true — but it was then too late.

* * *

WHEN JOHN was 16, Henry, tried to give him the duchy of Aquitaine. There was only one hitch to this, but it was a big one. Aquitaine happened to be the property of John's older brother, Richard the Lion Heart. This, naturally, brought about one of those father-son civil wars with which the history of the Middle Ages is dotted. The war ended in a compromise.

Henry's next foolish move was to send John to Ireland as that turbulent land's governor. John lost no time in alienating the native chiefs with his insolence and he had to scram home—but quick.

To show his appreciation for all that his father had tried to do for him, John conspired with the unruly Richard against their father, with King Philip of France entering into the scheme. This was too much for the old king and he died—supposedly of a broken heart.

When Richard, now the king, went galloping off to the Crusades he created a regency to rule England in his absence, putting control in other than John's hands. Richard was wise to his kid brother.

* * *

HOW SMART Richard had been was revealed when the Crusader fell into the hands of Duke Leopold of Austria, who made him prisoner. Immediately, John began conspiring against the throne but this scheme collapsed when Richard suddenly returned home.

Richard, in a burst of generosity, forgave John and named him his heir. That's how, on Richard's death in 1199, John became king. On the throne at last, John added to his reputation of being treacherous, unscrupulous, selfish and insolent by showing himself as grossly cruel and tyrannical.

The king exhibited an amazing capacity for not being able to get along with anyone. He even quarrelled with Pope Innocent III, a stupid stunt which angered many of the king's closest followers.

John so severely taxed his subjects the exasperated barons finally arose and forced him to sign the famous Magna Carta, or Great Charter. It was this humiliation which caused the king to retaliate by his rampaging junket which led to the attempt to cross the Wash and subsequent disaster.

City Officials Take to Heels

KENILWORTH, N. J., (AP) — A pack of city officials took to their heels the other morning.

They had to. Stolen in the same morning were:

The car of borough clerk Philip McGevna; the car of Superintendent of Roads James Rego; a city payloader tractor.

'Bad King John' Back in News As Engineers Seek His Treasure

By M. E. BYRNE
(Central Press Association)

Somewhere in the murky depths of the Wash, on the Norfolk coast of England, there should be a tidy treasure of some four million dollars worth of jewels, gold and silver.

If there isn't, then a team of British electrical engineers is off on the wildest goose chase of the year.

The costly baubles supposedly have lain there for some 740 years or ever since bad old King John went thataway back in 1216 en route to a roughouse with his old enemies, the barons.

The treasure was part of the baggage train attached to the king's forces. The loot consisted of jeweled swords and scepters, two jeweled gold crowns, silver and golden shrines and a collection of many silver cups.

Enshrouded in mist and fog the royal train crept across a narrow causeway until suddenly the inrushing tide swept around, then over it, the surging waters engulfing men, horses and wagons.

* * *

vanished into the mist and has been lost to sight ever since. What the engineers today are trying to find is the site of the causeway which, in turn, disappeared many years ago.

While the barons were happy to learn of the king's misfortune, they would have been even more delighted if the royal rascal had gone overboard along with his treasure because John probably was the most despised character that ever sat on the English throne.

By the sheerest stroke of luck, the king wasn't with the army when it met disaster. As it neared the Wash the monarch left his troops, to attend to some matter of state which required his immediate attention.

John seems to have made a lifelong policy of being obnoxious. Even as a youngster he was far from a bargain— conniving and scheming in the best—or worst—juvenile delinquent tradition.

As happens so often in the case of bad boys, John's father, King Henry II, was a kindly, doting parent who thought Johnny boy was just about the grandest guy to come down the pike until he learned the opposite was true — but it was then too late.

* * *

WHEN JOHN was 16, Henry, tried to give him the duchy of Aquitaine. There was only one hitch to this, but it was a big one. Aquitaine happened to be the property of John's older brother, Richard the Lion Heart. This, naturally, brought about one of those father-son civil wars with which the history of the Middle Ages is dotted. The war ended in a compromise.

Henry's next foolish move was to send John to Ireland as that turbulent land's governor. John lost no time in alienating the native chiefs with his insolence and he had to scram home—but quick.

To show his appreciation for all that his father had tried to do for him, John conspired with the unruly Richard against their father, with King Philip of France entering into the scheme. This was too much for the old king and he died—supposedly of a broken heart.

When Richard, now the king, went galloping off to the Crusades he created a regency to rule England in his absence, putting control in other than John's hands. Richard was wise to his kid brother.

* * *

HOW SMART Richard had been was revealed when the Crusader fell into the hands of Duke Leopold of Austria, who made him prisoner. Immediately, John began conspiring against the throne but this scheme collapsed when Richard suddenly returned home.

Richard, in a burst of generosity, forgave John and named him his heir. That's how, on Richard's death in 1199, John became king. On the throne at last, John added to his reputation of being treacherous, unscrupulous, selfish and insolent by showing himself as grossly cruel and tyrannical.

The king exhibited an amazing capacity for not being able to get along with anyone. He even quarrelled with Pope Innocent III, a stupid stunt which angered many of the king's closest followers.

John so severely taxed his subjects the exasperated barons finally arose and forced him to sign the famous Magna Carta, or Great Charter. It was this humiliation which caused the king to retaliate by his rampaging junket which led to the attempt to cross the Wash and subsequent disaster.

Christmas Season Can Be Hazardous

Little careless acts—that seem so unimportant at the time — are the cause of death or some accident which mars the spirit of joy that should accompany the holiday.

Tragedies — especially at Christmas — are needless, so take a moment to think about the dangers that may be present in the home.

Christmas trees cause many fires, so choose your tree wisely. Don't buy a larger tree than your family needs, and be sure it isn't dried out.

The many and varied assortment of lights now being used to decorate Christmas trees can, if not properly handled, cause an electrical fire.

Be sure you use only electric lighting sets that have been properly approved.

Christmas time has a lot of "do it yourself" tasks about the house. Watch out for frayed wires, loose connections and broken sockets on Christmas tree lights.

St. Francis Made Contributions to Christmas Custom

Some 400 years before St. Nicholas, Bishop of Myra, performed the many acts of generosity and kindness which made his life a great legend and gave him the "Santa Claus" character we know today, another saint — St. Francis of Assisi made other contributions to our celebration of Christmas.

St. Francis lived in the small Italian village of Garcia. In the year 1200 A. D., St. Francis arranged the first manger scene in a cave near the monastery where he lived. The scene was typical of that at Bethlehem. There was a manger filled with hay, an ox and an ass. St. Francis and his followers celebrated mass at the cave and sang hymns in honor of the Christ Child.

Himself a lover of music, St. Francis believed that the early chants (written in Latin) were too theological to be popular. He felt that Christmas music should be religious, yet should be more in keeping with the festivity spirit. He is generally credited with being the influence behind the more modern Christmas carols, which spread from Italy to France, from there to Germany; then to England and elsewhere.

'Bargain Basement' Equipment Used as Science Teaching Aid

By MAURICE G. BOEHL

WASHINGTON — Science, with "bargain basement" equipment, now is being taught in many underdeveloped countries because of the ingenuity of one United States teacher.

When Dr. Elsworth S. Obourn arrived in Thailand some time ago as UNESCO adviser to the minister of education, he found there wasn't a textbook on science in any of the schools. Pupils were taught only from teachers' notes.

The lack of equipment so essential for scientific experimentation especially disturbed him.

* * *

WITH $5 worth of equipment purchased in drug stores, hardware stores, or just taken from the family kitchen, he started making a simple laboratory. Local science teachers were encouraged to do the same and a chain reaction spread all over Asia.

Now UNESCO has put out a booklet detailing just how it's done.

No test tubes? Just take the top end off a burned-out electric light bulb and you have one. How do you heat it? A tin can with sides cut into strips or pieces of discarded tin or iron will serve to hold the bulb. An ink bottle filled with alcohol and a wick serves as a burner.

Dr. Obourn can prove all the tools needed are to be found around any home, such as hammers, screw drivers, saws, chisels, shears, files, knives and can openers.

Supplies also are easy to secure. The hardware store can provide nails, jars, flashlight batteries, needles, funnels. The food market will have ammonia, baking powder, baking soda, wax, salt and other chemicals. Garages will have pumps, old rubber tires, spark plugs, headlight reflectors and many other used parts.

Using a device made in the school workshop, Pakistani students learn about the transfer of energy, thanks to Dr. E. S. Obourn.

* * *

FOR college - level science, UNESCO has developed a kit of blueprints on how to build advance equipment.

Dr. Obourn, who was born in Mansfield, Pa., now is a specialist in science for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. He says he just "picked up" his ideas on simplified equipment during his many years of "just fooling around the laboratory."

One of the primary objectives of the program in Thailand, he said, was to give students scientific training needed in their country, just starting to industrialize. Another was to bring teachers from outlying schools to a central point for demonstrations and lectures.

Earth's Age Said 3½ Billion Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Irish scientist estimates the age of the earth at about 3½ billion years and that of the universe at no more than 6 billion years.

The Smithsonian Institution said these conclusions are in an article written for its annual report by Dr. E. J. Opik of Armagh Observatory in Northern Ireland.

In estimating 6 billion years as the upper limit of the age of the universe, Dr. Opik means the beginning of the star systems or state of matter out of which they evolved — not their present configurations.

New Factory May Prove Boon to Needy Navajos

By RUTH MULVEY HARMER

GAMERCO, N. M.—A program to aid the nation's reservation Indians in bridging the gap separating them from the Twentieth Century will be launched in December when a modern furniture plant begins operations here in Gamerco, in New Mexico's "Indian country."

Under the terms of an unprecedented "mutual assistance pact," the Navajo tribe and the Baby Line Furniture Co. of Los Angeles have become business partners. Officials of both organizations predict that the experiment will be "great business."

Paul Jones, chairman of the Navajo tribal council, and the firm's president, Saul Jacobs, are enthusiastic about the extensive dual rewards promised by the joint venture. Since 100 percent of the factory's labor force will be made up of Indians, they will benefit by learning modern, production-line skills.

Moreover, it is pointed out, it is the kind of Indian-industry cooperation that is needed to raise the average annual family income of the 80,000 Navajos on the reservation from a bare $300 to the more respectable $2,500-a year wage that will be gained by each full-time employe at the Gamerco plant.

The company will benefit since the wage scale—well below union rates prevailing in Los Angeles—will put it in a more favorable position to compete with lowpaying southern plants for eastern markets.

• • •

Dwellings are going up at a rapid clip; stores, restaurants and other facilities are being constructed; roads are being paved.

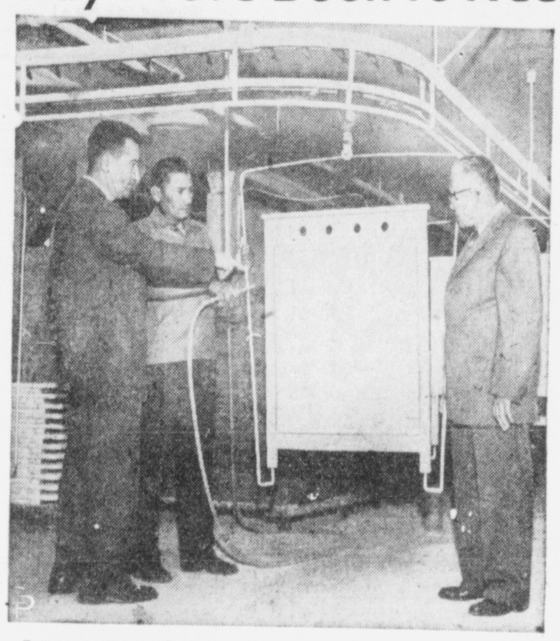
An abandoned coal mine building has been transformed into a streamlined factory to turn out play yards and other items of juvenile furniture according to the most efficient, ultra modern production techniques.

Now recruiting and training worker are the five leadmen, all Indians and all ex-GIs, who were sent by the tribal council to the plant last June to train for their future roles. These young men will supervise operations of the all-Indians labor force which is expected to number about 100 before the end of the year.

Company officials say that the young men graduated from their training course with flying colors. So great is their sense of dedication to their fellow tribesmen that all five of the young Indians gave up better-paying jobs to participate in the Indian-industry venture.

• • •

INDIAN WORKERS are no novelty at the Los Angeles plant. Indeed, Jacobs says that it was his company's past experience with Indians that prompted the firm to negotiate with the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the Navajos to get the factory started.



Factory partner Max Siegel (left) explains operation of conveyor line in spraying department to Paul Jones (right), Navajo tribal chairman, while an Indian ex-GI, Ark Logg, performs operation. These are crib ends being set up on the plant's conveyor line.

Among the other industrialists who now are reported to be working to set up plants in Indian country is William Lear, the lively genius of aviation, who is reported planning to start an electronics plant.

It will not be an easy job or a rapid one to bridge the centuries—old gap, but a promising beginning has been made.

If the co-operative venture between Indian and industry lives up to the great expectations, it may point the way toward solving one of the nation's gravest problems: how to incorporate into the national life one of the country's most underdeveloped resources—its Indian population.

Favorite Christmas Carols Originated In Many Countries

Three of America's favorite carols were brought here by early settlers from European lands. England contributed "God Rest You Merry Gentlemen." France gave this country "Cantique de Noel," and from Germany came "Away in a Manger."

"Adeste Fideles" belongs to no one country, but has been translated into 119 different languages and dialects.

Three Americans enriched the heritage of carols. The earliest contribution, "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" was made by Edmund H. Sears in 1849; Dr. John Henry Hopkins Jr., in 1859 composed "We Three Kings of Orient Are," and in 1868 "O Little Town of Bethlehem" was written by Phillip Brooks.

Nazareth Undergoes Changes

The advent of modern conveniences is gradually making a vast change in the homeplace of Jesus. Nazareth, scene of many miracles, has witnessed a new one — water, in plentiful supply.

Since long before the time of Christ, Nazarene women had to carry water in earthen jugs. Now, such sources as the famed "Fountain of Our Lady Mary" will be needed only as shrines recalling the city's historic past.

The water for the most predominantly Arab city in Israel is piped in from a Jewish farm settlement in the Valley of Esdraelon. The 12-inch pipe carries it to a summit overlooking Nazareth where a junction with municipal pipelines allows distribution throughout the city.

• • •

NAZARETH, the chosen city and one of Christendoms holiest places, was once so insignificant that the term "Nazarene" was applied to Jesus Christ in derision. And, long before the birth of Christ, the city was the target of a variety of invaders.

In the Christian era alone, Nazareth has been conquered many times. The city was wrecked by Saladin in the Christian-Moslem wars of the Middle Ages. In the same period the Christian population was massacred by Bibars, the Egyptian sultan and general. Some of the historic churches have been razed and rebuilt as many as three times.

Less than five miles away was the once thriving city of Sepphoris where the Romans put down a desperate revolt of the Jews led by Judas the Galillean when Jesus was a boy. Herod Antipas, son of Herod the Great, rebuilt Sepphoris, and there is speculation that the young Carpenter may have aided in the reconstruction.

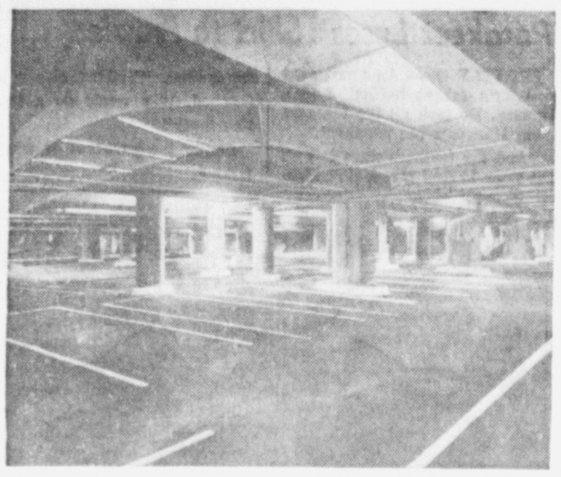
Looking for a Place To Park? Church Solves New York Problem



Commodious underground parking area of Riverside church.

NEW YORK—There's one way to beat the parking problem in Manhattan—go to church.

Although many religious groups try to provide some kind of parking facilities for their members, one church—the Riverside Church—has taken a giant step toward solving the dilemma. It recently opened a two-level parking area in the basement of a new parish house now under construction on the south wing of the famous church.

Seven thousand cubic yards of concrete went into the parking area which has a capacity of 131 "single-parked," or 199 stacked" cars. To accommodate the large number, the well-known garage tactic of moving one car to let another out can be used.

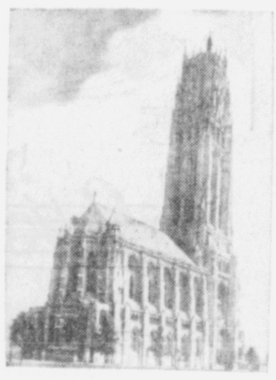
Situated at Riverside drive and West 120th St., hard by the Hudson River, the church's great memorial tower—rising 392 feet—is a familiar New York landmark. Nearby is Grant's Tomb and the campus of Columbia University. These factors have helped create an acute parking problem in the area.

* * *

GEORGE J. HEIDT, executive officer of the building committee of the church, believes that Riverside is the first church to house such a parking area within a building.

"Besides being available to the congregation (which numbers more than 3,600) and the church's staff of 100, the garage will greatly facilitate weddings and funerals," Heidt says.

The parking problem is so acute in the area that some officials believe that the enrollment at Columbia has suffered because of it. Cars may be parked on the alternate side of the street from day to day. Change - over time is 2 p. m.



Manhattan's Riverside church.

Heidt says he has observed Columbia students sitting in their cars just waiting for the change-over time. "Then it's a frantic race as they jockey for parking positions," he says. This sounds comical, but it's a serious, complex problem that is trying the minds and patience of the city's traffic experts.

IN THE SPRING of 1955, the congregation of Riverside Church, then nearing its 25th birthday, voted to erect a seven - story parish house on the south side of the church. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., had offered to build, furnish and erect it.

Excavations began the following August, and through January, 1956, an average of 100 truckloads of dirt and rock were removed each working day. Because Manhattan island is made up largely of tough mica schist, a great deal of blasting had to be done.

* * *

THIS WAS a delicate operation because the church's great windows and works of art had to be protected. A construction spokesman said that this required special shoring up and specialized blasting technique. "Not even a pane of glass was lost," he said.

The parking lot— which is already in full operation— is simply the basement and sub - basement of what will be the seven - story building. Two square portals on W. 120th St., mark the entrance and exit of the garage. At present they may be used only by the congregation and staff members.

A large "in" and "out" are painted on the pavement in front of the proper doors. As you drive down the curved ramp you think of the churches and the catacombs of ancient Rome, but suddenly you emerge into the huge parking area which is gleaming new and well - lighted. Here the similarity with the catacombs ends.

* * *

ANOTHER spiral ramp leads down to the lower chamber, laid out like the area of the first level. There is 36,460 square feet of space on each level. The parking area will be open from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m., and three attendants have been hired to direct its operations. The charge for parking is 25 cents for the first three hours and five cents for every additional hour or fraction.

"This parking area is not a profit - making venture," says Heidt. "The money will go for personnel and up keep. There will be no service or gasoline sold."

Riverside Church also operates a nursery school which has an enrollment of 200. The parking lot will make it easier for parents to drive in and leave their children at the school.

The nursery school will be housed in the new wing when it is completed sometime next year. There will be a playground on the roof for the kiddies.

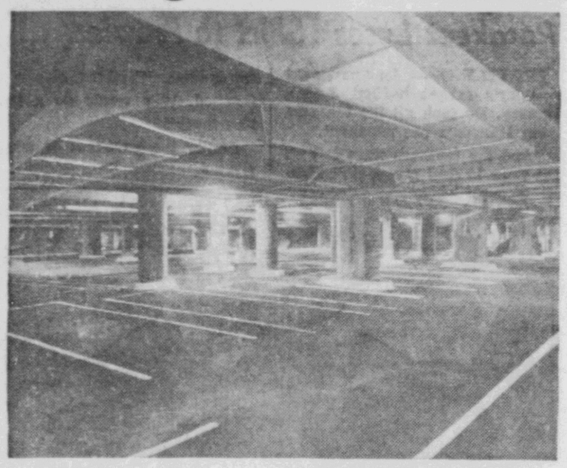
Looking for a Place To Park? Church Solves New York Problem



Commodious underground parking area of Riverside church.

Although many religious groups try to provide some kind of parking facilities for their members, one church—the Riverside Church—has taken a giant step toward solving the dilemma. It recently opened a two-level parking area in the basement of a new parish house now under construction on the south wing of the famous church.

Seven thousand cubic yards of concrete went into the parking area which has a capacity of 131 "single-parked," or 199 stacked" cars. To accommodate the large number, the well-known garage tactic of moving one car to let another out can be used.

Situated at Riverside drive and West 120th St., hard by the Hudson River, the church's great memorial tower—rising 392 feet—is a familiar New York landmark. Nearby is Grant's Tomb and the campus of Columbia University. These factors have helped create an acute parking problem in the area.

Michigan School Has Code For Both Parents, Children

And with eager cooperation from their parents, the kids are making the code work.

It's the project of 1,058 students at Muskegon Catholic Central High School, working with an organization of parents called the Holy Family Assn.

The object is to guide teen-age conduct without curtailing normal activities of the younger set. The code covers matters from public displays of affection (NO) to letting parents in on whereabouts (YES).

* * *

PARENTS too have their rules—like encouraging children to make their social center at home instead of the corner drugstore, and staying home when the young people entertain.

The Rev. Louis LaPres, school principal, says the codes have been a "tremendous help". As worked out by the parents group and approved by the students, the rules ask parents to:

Insist their children not attend parties uninvited and to ban home party crashers; to impound alcoholic beverages, ban after - date parties; agree on party closing hours and furnish transportation for 9th and 10th graders.

In turn, the students are to refrain from public displays of affection with dates; abstain from alcoholic beverages and refuse rides with students who do drink; adhere to estimated times of return from social affairs.

* * *

AN HOUR'S clause, ending informal and home parties at 11:30 p. m., aims at breaking the upstart custom of entertaining high schoolers at night-long "open houses" on prom nights.

The closing hours clause aims at actual events but leaves return home time for teen - agers up to individual families.

Student leaders are proud of the way the code is working. Tom McDermott, 17-year-old president of the school's student council, says other schools are seeking information on Muskegon Catholic's code.

"What we're doing could influence our own area," Tom said, "and I think by the example we set, we could push its influence even further."

This isn't the first trail - blazing action at the school. Father LaPres helped inaugurate a student credit union that was believed to be the first of its kind. Accounting and bookkeeping students taking business courses help manage the credit union. It emphasizes savings but loans are available for such teen - age emergencies as financing a big date.

Carols Custom Started about 16th Century

Christmas caroling, so much a part of our present-day observance of Christmas, is said to have begun about the 16th century.

The first real Christmas carol is attributed to St. Francis of Assisi, who made a model of the Bethlehem manger to help him tell his people the Christmas story.

Christmas carols were then supposedly taken from Italy to England by the traveling clergy. The idea of caroling fitted into the English conception of Christmas as a combination of religious celebration and a day of good will, so it flourished in that country.

Little bands and groups of singers which sprang up in the towns and villages were called "Waits." A natural explanation of the name seems to be that it refers to watching and waiting, for Christmas Eve is called the Vigil of Christmas.

As early as Dec. 21, which is the day dedicated to St. Thomas, mummers and carolers would begin going from door to door, announcing the great feast at hand. It was natural for householders to offer hospitality to these troubadors, and gradually in many places the custom of giving and receiving presents of various kinds was established.

Use of Tape Recorder May Help New Artists

By VIVIAN BROWN
(By The Associated Press)

A tape recorder may help you find your niche in the world. If the family got you one for Christmas, you may find that your voice is worth cultivating for the drama, opera or other enterprise.

Take charming Linda Babits, 15, whose rendition of a selection of classical works for the piano is being offered members of the "Tape of the Month Club," a New York organization which operates along the lines of a book club. She is billed as a "brilliant pianist."

It all started when Linda was ill seven years ago. She and her school teacher mother played a fun game of scales on the piano. That's when mother noticed that Linda had an aptitude for the instrument. Two years after her first lesson, Linda was featured in an all-star musical benefit at Madison Square Garden. At 10 Linda had the distinction of being the youngest soloist to play a major concert with the U. S. Military Academy Band at West Point.

SHE HAS appeared at New York's Town Hall, and has been on radio and TV. On her "Tape of the Month" Linda plays works by Bach, Mozart, Chopin, Scarlatti and Carcassi. At the New York High Fidelity Show the Babits tape outsold all major symphony orchestras 3 to 1, according to a spokesman for the tape club.

Linda, who possesses that soulful look peculiar to gifted musicians, says that anyone who thinks she has talent should stick to her guns. If your mother and father do not encourage you, keep trying anyway. Finally you may convince them. She explains:

"I was very lucky that my mother not only discovered my talent but encouraged it. If parents cannot afford lessons there are many organizations that will help get you started."

* * *

LINDA reminds us too that anything worthwhile is worth fighting for, and suggests that after-school jobs may help pay for the lessons. Says she:

"The important thing is to keep at it. Only practice can bring perfection. Whatever happens do not let people who do not understand music give you wrong advice."

If a tape recorder comes your way, play good tapes on it— those that help you follow the pattern of your own talent. Record the best from your own violin, piano, or harp and don't be afraid to criticize your own work. Someday you'll find a tape that you won't erase, and thereby, perhaps, will hang a story.

Apples for Teachers Just Aren't There!

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)— A company which wanted to welcome the annual convention of the Arizona Teachers Assn. left a barrel of apples in the school gymnasium where the meeting was to be held.

But there were no apples for the teachers when they arrived. The students got there first.

Early Christmases Strictly Religious

Although records indicate that the Christmas festival was spoken of in the fourth century as a custom of long standing, the exact age of the holiday is not known.

Christmas actually began as a strictly religious observance and was officially recognized in the Fourth Century as Christ's Mass, or the Mass of Christ. And it is quite significant to note that until this time it had been the custom of the church to celebrate the anniversaries of deaths, rather than births, so Christ's birthday was appropriately the first to be made an occasion for feasting.

It was many years after the first observance of Christ's Mass before gift - giving became a part of the festival season. The church finally condoned the practice, in remembrance of the Three Kings who had traveled far to present their gifts to the new - born Christ.

IN OTHER centuries, too, the feast of Christmas was to be the subject of controversy. In England, during the Reformation, many believed the undue jollity of Christmas Day to be sacrilegious. The English Parliament, on Dec. 24, 1652, ordered that "no observance shall be held of the five and twentieth day of December, commonly called Christmas Day; nor any colemnity used or exercised in churches upon that day in respect thereof."

Naturally, the edict proved to be very unpopular with the masses of the people, but it had its effect and it was many years before Christmas was once again regarded as a holiday.

Scientist Links Many Ills to Today's Tension

Keep Calm and Live Longer Urges Author Of 'Stress Theory

By FRANKLIN JOHNSON
(Central Press Association)

CHICAGO, Ill. — By keeping your emotions under control and maintaining a healthy frame of mind you may be able to fight off many diseases and live much longer, maintains Dr. Hans Selye of the University of Montreal who explained here his "stress theory" which is capturing worldwide medical attention.

Dr. Selye, director of the Institute de Medicine et de Chirurgie Experimentales in Montreal, outlined the results of his research before the professional group he believes can do a lot about it, the members of the American Psychological Assn. in their annual conference.

His experiments convince Dr. Selye that the human body has a unified defense against disease, pain, fatigue and stress, which he has called the "general adaptation syndrome." Some medical authorities consider it as important in its field as were the discoveries of Pasteur and Erlich.

It is really the anger, tension and frustration of modern living which will kill you, although the reason assigned may be a disease or just old age itself, according to Dr. Selye.

• • •

THE PART of the body's machine that is thrown out of balance by strong emotions, Dr. Selye contends, is the hormones under prolonged stress, and he reports that many of humanity's worst diseases, including heart disease, kidney disease and arthritis, are the direct result.

Corroborating Dr. Selye's findings, a Dutch scientist, Dr. O. Muhbock of the Netherlands Cancer Institute in Amsterdam, has added cancer to the maladies triggered by the emotions.

Healthy emotional life and exercise may help protect against some forms of cancer, according to Dr. Muhbock, who attributes the benefits of a calm and self-possessed existence as being a keeping of the gland systems and hormones in healthy balance.

Dr. Muhbock's studies have related mainly to breast cancer in women and cancer of the prostrate gland in men. Emotions apparently affect the glands and output of hormones.

The modern discoveries linking mental attitude with physical ailments recalled to some physicians and psychologists the teachings of a Frenchman, Dr. Emile Coue, which gained wide acceptance on two continents in the late 1920s, only to be largely forgotten.

• • •

URGING that people adopt an optimistic and hopeful outlook on life as a way to health, Dr. Coue suggested that they start each day by repeating to themselves, "Every day in every way, I am getting better and better." He developed a more elaborate routine in specific cases.

Although the method aroused some amusement in professional groups, it did appear that some people with physical ailments were helped by it, either actually or through their imaginations. Dr. Selye and his associates believe that the real connection between the purely inspirational part of the program and the physical effects was a tranquilizing of the emotions which may have restored the hormonal balance.

Dr. Selye was born in Vienna, Austria, Jan. 26, 1907, with a family background of a wellknown doctor father, and a grandfather and great - grandfather who were also doctors.

• • •

AFTER a medical education in Europe at the Universities of Prague, Paris and Rome, Dr. Selye received, in 1931, a Rockefeller research fellowship at Johns Hopkins university in Baltimore.

Later he went as a Rockefeller research fellow to McGill university in Montreal.

In 1936 he found the first evidence of his "stress theory," and obtained encouragement and financial help from Sir Frederick Banting of Toronto, the famous discoverer of the insulin treatment for diabetes.

Dr. Selye believes that the common denominator of many major diseases can be considered as "stress," which abounds in the modern world. This stress leads to an "over-adaptation and over-production of adrenal hormones."

He contends that "the apparent cause of illness is often an infection, an intoxication, nervous exhaustion, or merely old age—but actually a breakdown of the hormonal adaptation mechanism seems to be the most common ultimate cause of death in man."

Bethlehem's Stable Cold, Dark and Bare

Perhaps the most authentic duplication of the first manger scene was that prepared by St. Francis of Assisi in the year 1200.

The Stable of Bethelhem did not in any way resemble the elaborate and decorative scenes which are seen today, with greenery, bright lights, and plaster of Paris animals and adoring shepherds.

There was no room in the inn that night, so Jesus was born in a stable; a crude shelter hewn into a rocky ledge of the Judean countryside. It was cold and dark and damp, and bare of ornaments.

Weary Judean travelers often spent the night in such caves, welcoming rather than disdaining joint tenancy with beasts because the breath of the cattle and the heat of their bodies provided a little warmth.

The cave which believed to have been the birthplace of the Saviour is now a grotto beneath Bethlehem's Church of the Nativity, and though fascinated by the simplicity of the original Nativity scene, Christianity has still embellished it with comfort and ornamentation.

Christkindli Visits Swiss Youngsters

In Switzerland, it is not Santa Claus, but Christkindli, the Christ Child, who makes the rounds of Swiss homes on Christmas Eve.

The radiant angel is said to come from the North, traveling on a fairy-like sleigh, pulled by reindeer much like our Santa. Christkindli brings good Swiss children a beautiful tree, and many gifts. Like Santa, he insists that little children be good at all times, and he admonishes naughty youngsters.

Santa Claus, as We Know Him

The first was Clement Clark Moore, author of "A Visit to St. Nicholas," better known to us as, " 'Twas the Night before Christmas." Moore actually described Santa and gave him the famous reindeer and sleigh.

• • •

NAST DREW the familiar, fat, merry old fellow with red cheeks and white beard, dressed in red, wearing a cap and boots, carrying a pack of toys and smoking a short pipe.

The artist then gave Santa a spy-glass so that during the year he might pick out the good children from the bad, and also a big book in which to write their names and keep records.

This conception of Santa Claus first appeared in 1863. Since that time the pictured Santa has been the same, although the spy-glass and pipe seem to have been dropped by the way.

Thomas Nast, famous American cartoonist, was responsible for the two popular symbols of the major U. S. political parties — the Republican elephant and the Democratic donkey.

Christmas Trees Are Useful Even After Holidays

There are a number of uses to which the Christmas tree can be put after it has served its purpose in the home.

Longer branches can be planted as windbreaks to protect outdoor plantings such as low - growing boxwood, azalea, yew, rhododendron and juniper. Little teepees can be built around exposed shrubs and tender plants. This will protect them from biting, drying winds and prevent snow and ice from accumulating and bending the plants out of shape.

Other branches curved end up over flower beds when the ground is exposed will prevent heaving of soils during alternate freezing and thawing. Heaving may force bulbs and roots of perennials from the ground.

The entire tree may be used as a bird feeder in the back yard. It may be either anchored securely or fastened to a fence. Pieces of suet tied to its branches and a container of water nearby will provide a constant supply of food for feathered friends.

Scientist Links Many Ills to Today's Tension

Keep Calm and Live Longer Urges Author Of 'Stress Theory

By FRANKLIN JOHNSON
(Central Press Association)

CHICAGO, Ill. — By keeping your emotions under control and maintaining a healthy frame of mind you may be able to fight off many diseases and live much longer, maintains Dr. Hans Selye of the University of Montreal who explained here his "stress theory" which is capturing worldwide medical attention.

Dr. Selye, director of the Institute de Medicine et de Chirurgie Experimentales in Montreal, outlined the results of his research before the professional group he believes can do a lot about it, the members of the American Psychological Assn. in their annual conference.

His experiments convince Dr. Selye that the human body has a unified defense against disease, pain, fatigue and stress, which he has called the "general adaptation syndrome." Some medical authorities consider it as important in its field as were the discoveries of Pasteur and Erlich.

It is really the anger, tension and frustration of modern living which will kill you, although the reason assigned may be a disease or just old age itself, according to Dr. Selye.

* * *

THE PART of the body's machine that is thrown out of balance by strong emotions, Dr. Selye contends, is the hormones under prolonged stress, and he reports that many of humanity's worst diseases, including heart disease, kidney disease and arthritis, are the direct result.

Corroborating Dr. Selye's findings, a Dutch scientist, Dr. O. Muhbock of the Netherlands Cancer Institute in Amsterdam, has added cancer to the maladies triggered by the emotions.

Healthy emotional life and exercise may help protect against some forms of cancer, according to Dr. Muhbock, who attributes the benefits of a calm and self-possessed existence as being a keeping of the gland systems and hormones in healthy balance.

Dr. Muhbock's studies have related mainly to breast cancer in women and cancer of the prostrate gland in men. Emotions apparently affect the glands and output of hormones.

The modern discoveries linking mental attitude with physical ailments recalled to some physicians and psychologists the teachings of a Frenchman, Dr. Emile Coue, which gained wide acceptance on two continents in the late 1920s, only to be largely forgotten.

* * *

URGING that people adopt an optimistic and hopeful outlook on life as a way to health, Dr. Coue suggested that they start each day by repeating to themselves, "Every day in every way, I am getting better and better." He developed a more elaborate routine in specific cases.

Although the method aroused some amusement in professional groups, it did appear that some people with physical ailments were helped by it, either actually or through their imaginations. Dr. Selye and his associates believe that the real connection between the purely inspirational part of the program and the physical effects was a tranquilizing of the emotions which may have restored the hormonal balance.

Dr. Selye was born in Vienna, Austria, Jan. 26, 1907, with a family background of a wellknown doctor father, and a grandfather and great - grandfather who were also doctors.

* * *

AFTER a medical education in Europe at the Universities of Prague, Paris and Rome, Dr. Selye received, in 1931, a Rockefeller research fellowship at Johns Hopkins university in Baltimore.

Later he went as a Rockefeller research fellow to McGill university in Montreal.

In 1936 he found the first evidence of his "stress theory," and obtained encouragement and financial help from Sir Frederick Banting of Toronto, the famous discoverer of the insulin treatment for diabetes.

Dr. Selye believes that the common denominator of many major diseases can be considered as "stress," which abounds in the modern world. This stress leads to an "over-adaptation and over-production of adrenal hormones."

He contends that "the apparent cause of illness is often an infection, an intoxication, nervous exhaustion, or merely old age—but actually a breakdown of the hormonal adaptation mechanism seems to be the most common ultimate cause of death in man."

Bethlehem's Stable Cold, Dark and Bare

Perhaps the most authentic duplication of the first manger scene was that prepared by St. Francis of Assisi in the year 1200.

The Stable of Bethelhem did not in any way resemble the elaborate and decorative scenes which are seen today, with greenery, bright lights, and plaster of Paris animals and adoring shepherds.

There was no room in the inn that night, so Jesus was born in a stable; a crude shelter hewn into a rocky ledge of the Judean countryside. It was cold and dark and damp, and bare of ornaments.

Weary Judean travelers often spent the night in such caves, welcoming rather than disdaining joint tenancy with beasts because the breath of the cattle and the heat of their bodies provided a little warmth.

The cave which believed to have been the birthplace of the Saviour is now a grotto beneath Bethlehem's Church of the Nativity, and though fascinated by the simplicity of the original Nativity scene, Christianity has still embellished it with comfort and ornamentation.

Christkindli Visits Swiss Youngsters

In Switzerland, it is not Santa Claus, but Christkindli, the Christ Child, who makes the rounds of Swiss homes on Christmas Eve.

The radiant angel is said to come from the North, traveling on a fairy-like sleigh, pulled by reindeer much like our Santa. Christkindli brings good Swiss children a beautiful tree, and many gifts. Like Santa, he insists that little children be good at all times, and he admonishes naughty youngsters.

Santa Claus, as We Know Him

The first was Clement Clark Moore, author of "A Visit to St. Nicholas," better known to us as, " 'Twas the Night before Christmas." Moore actually described Santa and gave him the famous reindeer and sleigh.

* * *

NAST DREW the familiar, fat, merry old fellow with red cheeks and white beard, dressed in red, wearing a cap and boots, carrying a pack of toys and smoking a short pipe.

The artist then gave Santa a spy-glass so that during the year he might pick out the good children from the bad, and also a big book in which to write their names and keep records.

This conception of Santa Claus first appeared in 1863. Since that time the pictured Santa has been the same, although the spy-glass and pipe seem to have been dropped by the way.

Thomas Nast, famous American cartoonist, was responsible for the two popular symbols of the major U. S. political parties — the Republican elephant and the Democratic donkey.

Christmas Trees Are Useful Even After Holidays

There are a number of uses to which the Christmas tree can be put after it has served its purpose in the home.

Longer branches can be planted as windbreaks to protect outdoor plantings such as low - growing boxwood, azalea, yew, rhododendron and juniper. Little teepees can be built around exposed shrubs and tender plants. This will protect them from biting, drying winds and prevent snow and ice from accumulating and bending the plants out of shape.

Other branches curved end up over flower beds when the ground is exposed will prevent heaving of soils during alternate freezing and thawing. Heaving may force bulbs and roots of perennials from the ground.

The entire tree may be used as a bird feeder in the back yard. It may be either anchored securely or fastened to a fence. Pieces of suet tied to its branches and a container of water nearby will provide a constant supply of food for feathered friends.

Lights on Christmas Trees Became Popular around 1700

WASHINGTON (AP) — Christmas trees probably add more to mark the period of "peace on earth good will toward men" than any other product of the soil.

A. M. Sowder, extension forester of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, calls it "a symbol of living Christmas spirit." Sowder, who grows Christmas trees as a hobby and is an authority on the subject, reports that more than 25 million trees were harvested in 1955 in this country alone.

In his interesting pamphlet, "Christmas Trees — The Tradition and the Trade", he reports that the first record of trimmed Christmas trees in the United States appears in the period of the American Revolution when Hessian soldiers made use of them.

"However," Sowder points out, "the practice did not gain much headway in this country until about the middle of the 19th century when, after a year of controversy and doubt, it became an established custom in Cleveland."

"The story is that while strolling throughout the countryside one Christmas Eve under a brilliant starlit sky, his thoughts turned to the nativity of the Christ Child," Sowder relates. "Luther was impressed with the beauty of the heavens and the wintry landscape. He observed the snow-flecked evergreen trees sparkling in the moonlight. "Returning to his home he related the experience to his family and attempted to reproduce the outdoor scene.

To a small evergreen tree he attached lighted candles to simulate the reflections of the starlit heaven — the heaven that looked down over Bethlehem on the first Christmas Eve."

This would date the first lighted Christmas tree prior to 1546, but Sowder says the custom did not actually catch on until 1700, when lights became an accepted part of the decorations. The actual idea of decorating trees other than with lights, however, may have been an outgrowth of a practice adopted by early dwellers of the forest.

T. R. Disapproved Of Yule Trees-- But Not for Long

President Theodore Roosevelt, an ardent conservationist, once disapproved of Christmas trees and for several years forbade any being brought into the White House.

But one year his sons, Archie and Quentin, smuggled one in and set it up in Archie's room. After the discovery, Gifford Pinchot, a great forester and conservationist, soothed T. R. by explaining that supervised and careful harvesting of Christmas trees — as thinnings— was good for the forests.

Ever since, the White House has had an indoor tree.

Avid Collectors Forced To Build House Addition

And when their home became too small an addition was built to make room for the 3,000 beer steins that the father collected.

Bill Schwartz, who operates a farm nursery, started his beer stein collection 10 years ago. It got so big he built a wing on his home where the collection now reposes. One piece, a hand-carved mug from an elephant's tusk, is worth more than $3,000.

Mrs. Schwartz collects star-pattern cut glass. Her 17-year-old son, William Jr., has two collections— antique automobiles and curious looking pipes.

Christmas Day Observance Once Forbidden in America

Christmas was first observed in England around A. D. 521, during the reign of King Arthur. Observance of the holiday (as well as that of Easter) was forbidden when the Puritans conquered in 1642.

They passed an act in Parliament forbidding the celebration of both holidays and it was not until the Restoration of Charles II that these Christian practices again became prevalent in England.

Most historians credit Charles Dickens' immortal "Christmas Carol" as being perhaps the most effective force behind England's return to the observance of Christmas.

* * *

CELEBRATING Christmas was at one time forbidden on American shores. In 1659, the general court of Massachusetts Bay Colony passed a law stipulating a fine of five shillings for anyone "found oberving any such day as Christmas, or the like, either by forebearing labor, feasting or any other way, as a festival. . ."

Almost 30 years later, the first "legal" Christmas was observed in America when Gov. Andros conducted services in the town hall of Boston.

Many of our modern Christmas customs resulted from early efforts to transform major pagan customs under Christian influence.

In the Eighth Century, St. Boniface, an English missionary to Germany, persuaded his converts to substitute a green fir tree for their sacred oak and to adorn the green tree in a way that would pay tribute to the Christ Child.

Obscure Clergyman 'Unsung Hero' Of Handel's Christmas Oratorio

By JERRY KLEIN
(Central Press Association)

Besides Christmas carols, one bit of music you're hearing a lot of this holiday season is George Frederick Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah." The whole world recognizes it as a masterpiece of sacred music.

Yet, while the reputation of the composer Handel increases with time, the man who some say chose and arranged the words which inspired this great work is truly the unknown hero of Christmas.

In recent years he has been the subject of a motion picture and several radio dramatizations. Yet we know little definite about him except his name: Pooley and that he was a clergyman.

Pooley was employed in the 1740s as a secretary to Charles Jennens, who lived on Great Ormond St., in London. A wealthy man, Jennens rewrote a few of Shakespeare's plays and thought himself a critic of music and literature. No one knows how he came to employ Pooley, but Jennens reportedly forced the "half-starved curate" to tag along at his heels like a faithful dog.

* * *

ON JAN. 10, 1741, Handel's opera "Deidamia" opened in London. Three nights later it closed. Its discouraged composer retreated to his little room in Brook St. There, some months later, Jennens is said to have come with a manuscript he had taken from his browbeaten servant, Pooley. Jennens said the work was his own and suggested that Handel write music for it. Handel was not enthusiastic immediately, but thanked Jennens and put the manuscript away.

On Aug. 22, Handel again came on the manuscript. He sat down at his desk and began to write—at first slowly, then with gathering speed. He did not leave his house, nor hardly ate, nor spoke to anyone until Sept. 14.

On that day the glorious work was finished. Handel had written a famous Christmas hymn in the miraculously short time of 24 days. So absorbed was he in the composition that a servant came into the little room and found the composer in tears. "I did think," Handel said, "I did see all Heaven before me, and the great God Himself!"

* * *

THE HYMN, "The Messiah," was sung first in Neal's Music Hall in Dublin, in April 1742. However, in England it was the subject of hot debate. Clergymen tried to bar it from the theaters and Handel was called a heretic for proposing that a hymn to God be sung in common music halls.

George Handel
He got credit but Pooley did not.

Handel finally arranged an English performance in 1743 and, in order to calm his critics, renamed the work "A Sacred Oratorio." However, opposition remained bitter and the music was barred again the following year.

Meanwhile, the oratorio was coming to be recognized as great music in some quarters. Handel called the vain Jennens a "genius" and Jennens admitted it! He wallowed in the praise and bragged of his own ability. Apparently the little clerk, Pooley, who had inspired "The Messiah" never dared to say a word which would expose his master as a fraud.

* * *

POPULARITY of "The Messiah" grew and with it grew the reputations of Handel and Jennens. Eventually the churchmen repented and it was sung in England's greatest cities.

If the smallest royalty had been paid to Pooley, he could have retired to be lord of an even finer house than his master had in Great Ormond St.

Jennens, however, took the credit and Pooley lived out his life unnoticed. We can but wonder what other of this strange man's writings may have been stolen by his employer. It was only after two centuries that a gigantic fraud began to be suspected, and old records still are being examined for more evidence.

One Family Keeps Hospital Jumping

He had just finished repairing a gun and was going outside to test it when the bank's burglar alarm sounded.

Gun in hand, halfway out the door, it occurred suddenly to him that police rushing to the scene might misunderstand. He stepped back inside quickly.

"Even then, I felt kind of conspicuous," he said.

Dickens' 'Carol' Overshadowed in Author's Lifetime

Charles Dickens' famous Christmas Carol was not the most popular of his Christmas stories during his lifetime, nor was it the one he hoped to be remembered by.

Dr. Ada Nisbet, who did extensive research for a book on the famous English author, states that the most popular of Dickens' Christmas stories in his day was "The Cricket on the Hearth," a poignant story of a father who tries to shield his blind daughter from the realities of life.

"It outsold Dickens' familiar tale of Scrooge and Tiny Tim by two to one," says Dr. Nisbet, an associate professor of English on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California. "Two weeks after its appearance in 1845 dramatic versions of "The Cricket' were playing at 12 different theatres in London alone."

Dickens' own favorite of his many Christmas stories, and the one he hoped would give him lasting fame, was "The Chimes." As he was writing it, he enthusiastically wrote a friend that it "would knock 'The Carol' out of the field."

But the public did not take to "The Chimes," probably because it was filled with uncomfortable topical satire. "The Christmas Carol" survived and became increasingly popular, Dr. Nisbet believes, because it is cheerful and "Christmasy," with a social doctrine shapeless enough to be acceptable to all.

Early Festivals

Prior to the fourth century, the Christians observed only Epiphany (the commemoration of the Baptism) and Easter with festivals and religious rights; the physical birth of Christ not being widely recognized. In such countries as Spain and Armenia, the month prior to Epiphany was a time of fasting and repentance.

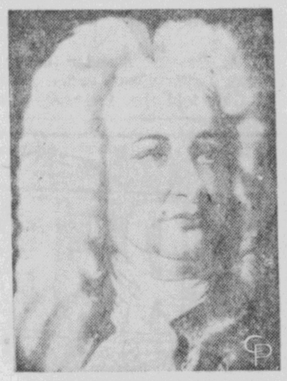
"I did think," Handel said, "I did see all Heaven before me, and the great God Himself!"

* * *

THE HYMN, "The Messiah," was sung first in Neal's Music Hall in Dublin, in April 1742. However, in England it was the subject of hot debate. Clergymen tried to bar it from the theaters and Handel was called a heretic for proposing that a hymn to God be sung in common music halls.



George Handel
He got credit but Pooley did not.

Handel finally arranged an English performance in 1743 and, in order to calm his critics, renamed the work "A Sacred Oratorio." However, opposition remained bitter and the music was barred again the following year.

Meanwhile, the oratorio was coming to be recognized as great music in some quarters. Handel called the vain Jennens a "genius" and Jennens admitted it! He wallowed in the praise and bragged of his own ability. Apparently the little clerk, Pooley, who had inspired "The Messiah" never dared to say a word which would expose his master as a fraud.

* * *

POPULARITY of "The Messiah" grew and with it grew the reputations of Handel and Jennens. Eventually the churchmen repented and it was sung in England's greatest cities.

If the smallest royalty had been paid to Pooley, he could have retired to be lord of an even finer house than his master had in Great Ormond St.

Jennens, however, took the credit and Pooley lived out his life unnoticed. We can but wonder what other of this strange man's writings may have been stolen by his employer. It was only after two centuries that a gigantic fraud began to be suspected, and old records still are being examined for more evidence.

One Family Keeps Hospital Jumping

He had just finished repairing a gun and was going outside to test it when the bank's burglar alarm sounded.

Gun in hand, halfway out the door, it occurred suddenly to him that police rushing to the scene might misunderstand. He stepped back inside quickly.

"Even then, I felt kind of conspicuous," he said.

Dickens' 'Carol' Overshadowed in Author's Lifetime

Charles Dickens' famous Christmas Carol was not the most popular of his Christmas stories during his lifetime, nor was it the one he hoped to be remembered by.

Dr. Ada Nisbet, who did extensive research for a book on the famous English author, states that the most popular of Dickens' Christmas stories in his day was "The Cricket on the Hearth," a poignant story of a father who tries to shield his blind daughter from the realities of life.

"It outsold Dickens' familiar tale of Scrooge and Tiny Tim by two to one," says Dr. Nisbet, an associate professor of English on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California. "Two weeks after its appearance in 1845 dramatic versions of "The Cricket' were playing at 12 different theatres in London alone."

Dickens' own favorite of his many Christmas stories, and the one he hoped would give him lasting fame, was "The Chimes." As he was writing it, he enthusiastically wrote a friend that it "would knock 'The Carol' out of the field."

But the public did not take to "The Chimes," probably because it was filled with uncomfortable topical satire. "The Christmas Carol" survived and became increasingly popular, Dr. Nisbet believes, because it is cheerful and "Christmasy," with a social doctrine shapeless enough to be acceptable to all.

Early Festivals

Prior to the fourth century, the Christians observed only Epiphany (the commemoration of the Baptism) and Easter with festivals and religious rights; the physical birth of Christ not being widely recognized. In such countries as Spain and Armenia, the month prior to Epiphany was a time of fasting and repentance.

Operation Toylift Brings Joy To 50,000 Needy Youngsters

By DICK BELLEW
(Central Press Association)

Originating eight years ago in this storybook village of North Pole, N. Y., high on Whiteface Mountain, "Operation Toylift," established as a national charity in 1955, again this year delivers more than 20 tons of toys to orphaned, crippled and underprivileged children, in 13 states, the District of Columbia and three provinces of Canada.

Landing at 34 major airports in northeastern United States, Santa's Sky Reindeer, loaned to Santa's workshop by an oil company, carries St. Nick and all the things that jolly old gent betides to more than 50,000 children.

In eight flights, each on successive days, this airborne Santa journeys all over the East, through New England, north to Canada; to Quebec, Montreal and Ottawa, and as far west as Cleveland.

Operation Toylift, the outgrowth of an unexpectedly successful "tourist venture," is carried out as a combined effort of Santa's Workshop, Inc., and the many community groups who work to provide Christmas for the unfortunate children of their area.

* * *

TOYS, contributed by nearly 100 different business concerns, and purchased with donations from more than 500,000 visitors to Santa's Workshop during the summer, are delivered by truck, parcel post, and by Santa himself in the Sky Reindeer.

Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions clubs, the American Legion, and many others; along with city agencies, Children's Aid societies, and the homes maintained for these unfortunate youngsters, take part in this great Christmas project.

Nine years ago, two Lake Placid, N. Y., businessmen, Julian Reiss and Harold G. Fortune, conceived the idea of bringing Santa Claus into closer proximity with these children.

On a tract of nearly 3,000 acres in the most scenic area of a real "North Pole" (it remains covered with ice on even the hottest July day), and from all over the world they collected a complete menagerie of Santa's gentle animal friends.

They employed nearly 200 people to depict all of storyland's famous characters and to be Santa's helpers. They even found a "Santa Claus" with genuine whiskers, a detail which has reaffirmed many youngsters' faith, for tugging Santa's beard is a crucial test.

* * *

ON MAY 9, 1949, the village of North Pole was officially opened, with even a government post office. During the first summer nearly a quarter - million (mostly adults) came to pay their off-season respects to Santa.

In the last nine years, more than five million have come to see the workshop and its many attractions; to roam through this quaint and peaceful village of brightly colored pine-log buildings.

The following year, Operation Toylift was inaugurated, and the two men, using Reiss' private plane, distributed toys among 2,000 children of New York state.

In 1955, Toylift was incorporated into a national, non - profit charitey. A Rocky Mountain chapter was formed in Colorado, and Fortune, who is now executive vice-president of Santa's Workshop, Inc., is hopeful of eventually having committees in every state in connection with this annual toy distribution.

Here's a Recipe For Yuletide 'Wassail Bowl'

In the days of the Saxons, "washail" was a popular greeting meaning "health to you." It later became a Yuletide drinking toast, and cups of hot wassail were given to visiting Christmas carolers.

CHRISTMAS WASSAIL
2 quarts sweet cider
6 whole cloves
1 three-inch stick of cinnamon
6 whole allspice
½ cup light brown sugar, juice of 6 oranges
(16 to 20 punch cups)

Simmer the cider, spices and sugar for 15 minutes. Let stand for 12 hours. Then add orange juice. Strain, reheat and serve.

Serve wassail hot from a large bowl and green cherries, orange slices or small baked apples floating in it. Place the bowl on a holly-trimmed tray.

Tree Harvesting Good for Forests

Cutting an evergreen for a Christmas tree is not a harmful practice, so don't feel guilty about it. Even the trees that are sold in market places were "harvested" as a crop to give living room to regular plantings.

Christmas trees are grown on poorer forest soils and wet bog areas where evergreens grow far too slowly to produce a lumber or pulpwood crop — thus Christmas trees are the only profitable harvest that can come off that land.

Some trees do come from top lumber areas, but these are "thinnings." In growing trees as a crop it is often necessary to thin out the smaller trees so others will have room to live and grow.

Thus it is that the "thinnings" serve a number of uses; they bring Christmas joy into the home; provide income for the forester; and serve as "lift insurance" for upcoming timber crops.

The first written notes about horseshoes and nails can be traced to the Sixth century B.C., in England.

Santa Claus, Ind., Got Its Name on A Christmas Eve

Except for a lucky break, the town might have had another name and thus would not have enjoyed the annual fame that it enjoys with each Yuletide season.

Originally the name Santa Fe was chosen, but officials in Washington suggested another name be chosen, since there already was a Santa Fe in New Mexico.

So it was that on Christmas Eve, in 1882, citizens of the nameless town gathered to select another name. Suggestions were tossed about for some time, until Santa Claus, making his yearly visits in the neighborhood strode in to get warm. He was attired in proper costume and his arrival seemed to put one name in every mind.

And so the town was named Santa Claus.

Year of Unrest In Oil Supply Seen

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A government oil official believes it may take a full year to restore normal oil transportation channels disrupted because of the Suez Canal crisis.

H. A. Stewart, director of the Interior Department's Office of Oil and Gas, told the Interstate Oil Compact Commission that although the Suez Canal may be cleared in six months, it may take a year to restore damaged pipelines to normal capacity.

Meantime, the United States is stepping up its domestic production both to meet its own needs and to help relieve a serious shortage in Europe.

U. S. Government Grows And Grows--AND Grows

By H. D. CRAWFORD

WASHINGTON — While Americans were deciding whom they were going to elect as their next President and who will represent them in Congress, construction workers on Capitol Hill were busily translating blueprints into steel and concrete for the magnificent new $20,600,000 Senate Office Building.

This structure, scheduled for completion early in 1958, will provide 40 five - room suites for senators, offices for the Vice President, legislative counsel and 12 standing committees, the pages' school, a 500 - seat auditorium, and a telephone switchboard for all federal offices on Capitol Hill.

Surfaced with white Vermont marble, and with Indiana limestone on interior courts, the nine-story structure (seven above ground and two below) will provide senators the finest office facilities in our nation's history.

The present Senate Office Building will be remodeled to provide 56 five-room suites for senators. It will also house the other three standing committees, the small business select committee, special and other select committees and subcommittee staffs.

* * *

THE NEW Senate Office building will give 8,790,000 more cubic feet of space to senators and their growing staffs to handle more efficiently their part of the increasingly - complex business of federal government.

Suites of standing committee chairmen will be close to hearing rooms and committee offices. Two pedestrian tunnels will connect the two Senate office buildings. Subway transportation will link both buildings with the Capitol.

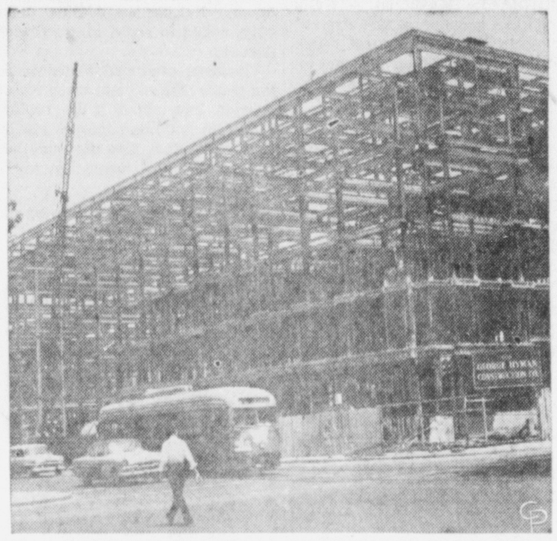
Four offices in the new building will be equipped for the press, periodical press, and radio and television newsmen.

Space has been a problem ever since the United States government moved near the Potomac and the Sixth Congress met here first in the fall of 1800.

Washington in those days was a small city of 3,000 people. The Senate, House and Supreme Court were all housed in the old north wing of the Capitol. Membership in the House and Senate combined was only 138. In 1802 there were only 126 federal employes in the national capital. Today the Senate alone employs 1,948 persons.

* * *

SPACE in additional wings to the Capitol usually went to committee chairmen. Many individual senators used their desks in the Senate chamber for work. Others did their office work at home, in hotels or in rented office space. A senator's staff usually consisted of one male secretary.



Framework of new Senate Office building rises on Washington skyline.

No adequate central office was provided senators until 1891, when the old Maltby Building near Capitol Hill was acquired and converted into the Senate's first office building. It became known as the Senate Annex.

In 1897 when the Library of Congress moved out of the Capitol to its own beautiful new building, its space in the Capitol was converted into space for Senate committees.

* * *

DEMANDS for Senate office space increased as the nation grew. In 1904, Congress authorized the construction of an office building for the Senate. This U-shaped, three - wing building was occupied in 1909, and all but eight senators moved their offices into it. The other eight remained in the Capitol. The Senate Annex was abandoned.

Space again was a problem by 1931. Congress authorized another wing on the Senate Office building. It was occupied in June, 1933.

The new Senate Office building was authorized in 1949, but appropriations were withheld until 1954. Excavation work began in January, 1955, and was completed the following September. Construction work then started immediately.

* * *

WHEN the new building is completed and the present one remodeled, our 96 senators will have 751 rooms, besides those in the Capitol, in which to handle their share of the country's business.

Oceans To Slake Nation's Thirst?

By LEONARD J. SNYDER
(Central Press Association)

WASHINGTON — Government scientists are out to lick one of the most vital problems faced by Americans today: How to get an adequate supply of water?

In the Office of Saline (salt) Water of the Department of the Interior, researchers are making good progress on desalting the water from the oceans and in converting brackish water to use. Further gains are expected to be made in 1957.

As of now, scientists can provice potable water, converted either from saline or brackish waters, at a cost which would be less than the price of bottled mountain water.

However, as Interior Secretary Fred A. Seaton emphasizes, "We are still a long way— though not a discouraging distance — from being able to furnish water from those sources for industrial and agricultural uses at a price which would permit economical utilization."

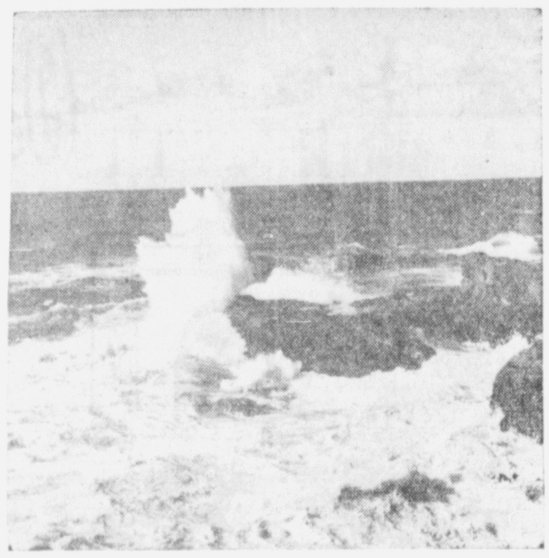
Nevertheless, Seaton believes that the day is in sight when there will be networks of water pipelines criss - crossing the country as our petroleum lines do today. He says water will flow through these lines from where it is obtainable in one form or another into areas where water doesn't exist at all, or in less than the amounts needed.

* * *

IT STILL MAY be years before this comes about, although those closest to the problem in Washington told the Central Press Assn., "We're well on the way toward its solution."

Meanwhile, these officials warn that unless faster headway can be made in the race between "running minds and running water," the desperate need felt in our drought areas likely will lap over into areas with sufficient supplies at present.

Within the last year alone, about one thousand villages, towns and cities from coast to coast have been forced to curtail— and in some cases to a drastic degree— the use of drinking water. In area after area, Americans have been drawing on underground water supplies faster than they are being replenished.



Oceans of water flank the U. S. When will we use it?

Scientists working on the problem are well aware that if this trend continues the ultimate answer well may be disaster. Meanwhile, we'll probably continue to read thought-provoking books and articles with such titles as "Our Growing Crisis: Water; How Shall We Solve Our Water Problem?" "Plenty of Water But None to Waste."

This past summer in Dallas, Tex., drinking water was sold for more than the cost of gasoline. Crude oil has sold in Texas for seven cents a gallon while drinking water was bought for 50 cents a gallon— nearly seven times as much.

* * *

IT WILL BE recalled that in New York City the drinking water problem was so acute that people were fined for leaky taps. Residents in one New Jersey community even had to ask themselves "Is this bath necessary?"

While scientists continue to explore the possibilities of how to get more fresh water, Americans who have not, until recently, become aware of the shortage problem are beginning to ask how it all came about.

The problem didn't spring up overnight. We've been using water at a faster rate each year since the turn of the century. Twenty years ago the average person used about 128 gallons a day compared with the present average of 145 gallons.

If industrial and farm uses of water are added, we need 1,200 gallons every day for every man, woman and child. It takes 65,000 gallons to make a ton of finished steel, 50,000 gallons to produce a ton of paper, 7,500 gallons to grow a bushel of wheat and five gallons to process a gallon of milk.

A sad commentary on all this is that only 27 per cent of the rain that falls in 17 western states actually is put to use while the rest runs unused into the sea.

In the eastern states, only eight per cent of the available water is used while the staggering total of 825 billion gallons runs into the sea every day.

* * *

ADDING to the problem of our depleting supply is the increasing population. By 1975, when there'll probably be more than 200 million Americans, we'll need 453 billion gallons a day. This is an increase of enough water to satisfy the daily requirements of 145 cities the size of New York.

According to one United States Public Health service official, "While some cities are making good progress in cleaning up (polluted) streams, for the country as a whole we're losing ground."

This official emphasizes that states must put more teeth in their water pollution laws, while another maintains that the need for waste-treatment works is second only to schools in priority of claim on our capital outlay for public works.

* * *

IT IS the belief of the Commerce department that a billion dollars will be required annually for 20 years on public water supply systems alone if we are to meet rapidly expanding needs and ease shortages.

So far, the problem of how to get an adequate supply of water for the nation's present and future needs has been mounting faster than the solutions to it.

It was 20 miles in towns and cities. It was only 12 miles at street and railway crossings, and while passing schools.

The permit was just something she wanted to show patrolmen.

She didn't ask to have it renewed.

Oceans To Slake Nation's Thirst?

By LEONARD J. SNYDER
(Central Press Association)

WASHINGTON — Government scientists are out to lick one of the most vital problems faced by Americans today: How to get an adequate supply of water?

In the Office of Saline (salt) Water of the Department of the Interior, researchers are making good progress on desalting the water from the oceans and in converting brackish water to use. Further gains are expected to be made in 1957.

As of now, scientists can provice potable water, converted either from saline or brackish waters, at a cost which would be less than the price of bottled mountain water.

However, as Interior Secretary Fred A. Seaton emphasizes, "We are still a long way— though not a discouraging distance — from being able to furnish water from those sources for industrial and agricultural uses at a price which would permit economical utilization."

Nevertheless, Seaton believes that the day is in sight when there will be networks of water pipelines criss - crossing the country as our petroleum lines do today. He says water will flow through these lines from where it is obtainable in one form or another into areas where water doesn't exist at all, or in less than the amounts needed.

IT STILL MAY be years before this comes about, although those closest to the problem in Washington told the Central Press Assn., "We're well on the way toward its solution."

Witchcraft, Black Magic Relics On Exhibit at Library of Congress

By DEANE AND DAVID HELLER
(Central Press Association)

WASHINGTON — Interested in witchcraft and black magic?

It traces magic, witchcraft, hocus pocus, conjuring, spiritualism, ventriloquism, hypnotism and the like back hundreds of years, to the Middle Ages. Back farther than that, really, for the oldest item of the hundreds on display is a book originally written about 150 B. C. by Heron of Alexandria, Egypt, which revealed the secrets of the magical effects achieved by the priests in the ancient Greek temples.

The show is a joint effort of the Library of Congress, which already has what is undoubtedly the world's most outstanding collection of books and other objects relating to magic, and Dr. Morris Young of New York, who has collected and donated some 20,000 items relating to magic to the library.

These will join thousands of other items, collected by such as Harry Houdini, famed magician of all time, whose books and records have already been given to our national repository of knowledge.

Not many people realize it, but magicians come from all over the world to consult the library's collections on magic.

* * *

LOOKING over the assembled volumes and other materials relating to magic, one thing that strikes a Twentieth Century observer is the fact that it was downright risky to be a magician in the days of our forefathers. You were likely to end up minus your head, hanged or burned at the stake.

One of the fascinating things in the collection is an order, written by hand in 1629 by English justice of the peace, R. O. Howard, ordering the imprisonment of a luckless wretch named Edmond Daniel, a local magician on suspicion of witchcraft and for fear that he would injure the neighbors or "spoyle their Cattell."

If poor Daniel escaped with a jail term and a little torture, he was lucky, for there are grim reminders in the exhibit that thousands of others who dabbled in the forbidden art of magic during the Middle Ages met death in horrible ways.

* * *

AMONG the ancient volumes displayed are "Dacmonologie" (Demonology) written in 1603 at the express direction of King James I of England, and a code issued by Pope Innocent VIII to suppress witchcraft in 1484. Both advocated death, preferably by burning or hanging, for suspected witches.

There must have been something irresistible about magic to induce men to attempt sleight of hand and other tricks at such risk!

... first writer to dare to go counter to the popular superstition about witchcraft was a brilliant young law student named Reginald Scot, whose book "Discovery of Witchcraft" published in 1584, debunked witchcraft and was the first to carefully describe methods of conjuring and legerdemain.

* * *

...EDDIBLY, Scot kept his head on his shoulders, although ... kept a wary eye on him and never lost a chance to make things rugged for the courageous young man. It's a good thing Scot got off so easily, for he was an ancestor of Francis Scott Key, who wrote our national anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner."

Things picked up for the magicians after that and books on magic became popular. One fascinating book is "Hocus Pocus Junior, published in London in 1635, which sets forth the black arts very fully. Magicians still come to the Rare Book room of the Library of Congress to consult it, officials there say.

Hundreds of items connected with latter day magicians, including the great Houdini, round out the collection. Interestingly enough, there is evidence that those old magical words, hocus pocus, came from the name of an early magician who adopted that name and used it in his conjuring.

Beat That Bell!

Frosted Leaves Produce Poison

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)— Dr. Samuel Guss, veterinarian at Pennsylvania State University reports wild cherry or chokecherry leaves damaged by frost produce prussic acid, a poison fatal to many animals.

A handful of these leaves can kill a cow or several sheep, Dr. Guss said. Removal of the trees is the only permanent control.

Woman's Suggestion Cuts Army Tape Cost

Mrs. Ruby Finch helps keep tab on automotive spare parts. But she got tired of all the paper work that came in from Army ordnance posts.

She suggested that much of the information be consolidated on separate 150-inch tapes. The Army said her idea would save $9,000 a year in tape.

State Planning Underpasses For Antelope

It was simply this:

The natural migration paths to food and water for southern Wyoming's vast antelope herds frequently cross U. S. 30.

The highway department couldn't get federal aid funds unless the highway is adequately fenced—and the state game and fish department maintained the antelope herd, vital to the state's recreational and tourist economy, would be wiped out if the migration paths were blocked.

The solution:

When U. S. 30 is improved to four lanes under the interstate highway program, underpasses will be constructed every two miles along nearly 300 miles of road—just to let the antelope cross.

Choir Music Rings Out In Leningrad Cathedral

By FREDRIK HETTER
(Central Press Association)

LENINGRAD, Russia—One Sunday our group of American and Scandinavian students stood outside the beautiful Nikolsky cathedral, with its onion - shaped domes rising above many - colored walls, and were astounded to hear magnificent choir music rolling out from the opening door.

Inside, the power of the adoration of hundreds of Russians at worship was a shock as the Russian Orthodox church has been forced, since the revolution, to fight for its existence. Many churches have become museums, and seminaries are closed. However, here we were now, a group of Westerners, witnessing a resplendent religious service in Soviet Russia's second city. We looked on in wonder.

We climbed up to the balcony and looked down at the service. A peasant woman fell to her knees and touched the floor with her forehead. Mothers brought young babies to be blessed by a veritable young giant of a priest, assisted by another wearing a gold robe.

* * *

Behind the young mothers stood the older people, who well may have been born before the revolution. One could not tell. Their faces and bodies looked as if they toiled many long years.

Then suddenly I saw something I never had expected to see, a tall, darker, smaller, perhaps a Ukranian.

It seemed unbelievable to be here in a church, where the splendor contrasted greatly with the shabbiness of the worshipers, in the city of Lenin, the cradle of the revolution.

The priests, seven in all, clothed in traditional garments, conducted a service in the ancient manner. The presence of the younger priests confirmed the Soviet announcement that the seminaries had been reopened.

Our girl guide, little, blond Tanya, could not help us understand the meaning of what we had seen. She just shrugged.

'Free Parking' Too Expensive

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Clarence Osborne was judged "Safe Driver of the Week" by the Augusta Lions Club and was awarded six months of free parking.

He pasted the sticker— countersigned by the police chief— on the rear window of his car as instructed— and within 48 hours had received three tickets for over-parking.

Hi-Fi Parties Make Big Holiday Hit

By VIVIAN BROWN

Hi - fi parties are expected to be all the rage at Christmas and New Year's. The idea is that the young group may close themselves off in a room with their Hi - Fi while Mom, Dad and other members of the family entertain in another room. It'll be fun, say young moderns, just to sit around and listen.

One young girl always entertains her group at a party in her own room. A couple of husky young men arrive early enough to rearrange the furniture so there is plenty of seating space for all. That way, she says, the family can entertain too.

Corn may be popped in an electric popper and hot dogs can sizzle on a borrowed electric broiler if need be right in her room if the kitchen is going to be in full party use. She can cook everything in advance or serve cold things such as salad and sandwiches with a hot drink if she prefers.

* * *

THE LOVELY THING about Hi-Fi is that it brings out the joyous tones of Yuletide carols. The clarity that a good Hi-Fi set and proper acoustics affords can put young people in the mood for pretending they are really at a concert.

Good Christmas records include "Santa Claus is Coming," "White Christmas," "Jingle Bells" and traditional English carols such as "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen."

Carol parties are becoming so popular that one of the large recording companies has included a group of old Spanish carols this year for a change of pace. "Fum, Fum, Fum" is one, "Ya Vienne La Vieja" is another, and "Hacia Belen"—a Spanish patter song that recounts the arriva in Bethlehem of a donkey laden with chocolates and gypsies.

* * *

FRANCE and Germany contribute old carols such as "Here Mid the Ass and the Oxen". The Robert Shaw Chorale has recorded masterpieces of Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven. Perry Como includes the old recitative, "The 12 Days of Christmas" in his group in which there is lighter music too—"Winter Wonderland" and "Frosty the Snowman".

George Beverly Shea, the internationally known gospel singer and tenor Mario Lanza are represented also in long - play platters of Christmas carols.

The envelopes that hold the Yuletide recordings are almost as popular with young people these days as the recordings, they are so beautifully ornamented in many instances with kodachrome winter scenes appropriate to Christmas.

Young Escapees Flag Wrong Car

GATESVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Two inmates fled the State Reformatory for Boys campus and were trying to flag a ride 15 miles west of town.

The obliging motorist who gave them a lift was the school superintendent, Herman Sapier, who had started on a business trip. He detoured long enough to take the boys back to the institution.

Choir Music Rings Out In Leningrad Cathedral

By FREDRIK HETTER
(Central Press Association)

LENINGRAD, Russia—One Sunday our group of American and Scandinavian students stood outside the beautiful Nikolsky cathedral, with its onion - shaped domes rising above many - colored walls, and were astounded to hear magnificent choir music rolling out from the opening door.

Inside, the power of the adoration of hundreds of Russians at worship was a shock as the Russian Orthodox church has been forced, since the revolution, to fight for its existence. Many churches have become museums, and seminaries are closed. However, here we were now, a group of Westerners, witnessing a resplendent religious service in Soviet Russia's second city. We looked on in wonder.

We climbed up to the balcony and looked down at the service. A peasant woman fell to her knees and touched the floor with her forehead. Mothers brought young babies to be blessed by a veritable young giant of a priest, assisted by another wearing a gold robe.

* * *

Behind the young mothers stood the older people, who well may have been born before the revolution. One could not tell. Their faces and bodies looked as if they toiled many long years.

Then suddenly I saw something I never had expected to see, a tall, rather good looking man of about 35, wearing in his buttonhole the emblem of one of the Communist organizations!

It seemed unbelievable to be here in a church, where the splendor contrasted greatly with the shabbiness of the worshipers, in the city of Lenin, the cradle of the revolution.

The priests, seven in all, clothed in traditional garments, conducted a service in the ancient manner. The presence of the younger priests confirmed the Soviet announcement that the seminaries had been reopened.

Our girl guide, little, blond Tanya, could not help us understand the meaning of what we had seen. She just shrugged.

'Free Parking' Too Expensive

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Clarence Osborne was judged "Safe Driver of the Week" by the Augusta Lions Club and was awarded six months of free parking.

He pasted the sticker— countersigned by the police chief— on the rear window of his car as instructed— and within 48 hours had received three tickets for over-parking.

Hi-Fi Parties Make Big Holiday Hit

By VIVIAN BROWN

Hi - fi parties are expected to be all the rage at Christmas and New Year's. The idea is that the young group may close themselves off in a room with their Hi - Fi while Mom, Dad and other members of the family entertain in another room. It'll be fun, say young moderns, just to sit around and listen.

One young girl always entertains her group at a party in her own room. A couple of husky young men arrive early enough to rearrange the furniture so there is plenty of seating space for all. That way, she says, the family can entertain too.

Corn may be popped in an electric popper and hot dogs can sizzle on a borrowed electric broiler if need be right in her room if the kitchen is going to be in full party use. She can cook everything in advance or serve cold things such as salad and sandwiches with a hot drink if she prefers.

* * *

THE LOVELY THING about Hi-Fi is that it brings out the joyous tones of Yuletide carols. The clarity that a good Hi-Fi set and proper acoustics affords can put young people in the mood for pretending they are really at a concert.

Good Christmas records include "Santa Claus is Coming," "White Christmas," "Jingle Bells" and traditional English carols such as "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen."

Carol parties are becoming so popular that one of the large recording companies has included a group of old Spanish carols this year for a change of pace. "Fum, Fum, Fum" is one, "Ya Vienne La Vieja" is another, and "Hacia Belen"—a Spanish patter song that recounts the arriva in Bethlehem of a donkey laden with chocolates and gypsies.

* * *

FRANCE and Germany contribute old carols such as "Here Mid the Ass and the Oxen". The Robert Shaw Chorale has recorded masterpieces of Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven. Perry Como includes the old recitative, "The 12 Days of Christmas" in his group in which there is lighter music too—"Winter Wonderland" and "Frosty the Snowman".

George Beverly Shea, the internationally known gospel singer and tenor Mario Lanza are represented also in long - play platters of Christmas carols.

The envelopes that hold the Yuletide recordings are almost as popular with young people these days as the recordings, they are so beautifully ornamented in many instances with kodachrome winter scenes appropriate to Christmas.

Young Escapees Flag Wrong Car

GATESVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Two inmates fled the State Reformatory for Boys campus and were trying to flag a ride 15 miles west of town.

The obliging motorist who gave them a lift was the school superintendent, Herman Sapier, who had started on a business trip. He detoured long enough to take the boys back to the institution.

California Couple Operators Of 'Santa's Own Tailor Shop'

By ELLEN SAUNDERS

SUNSET BEACH, Calif.—Everyone should be able to afford the fun of playing Santa Claus. That's the theory held by Santa's personal tailors, Fred and Sonia Gerletti, whose tiny tailor shop, here in Sunset Beach, is the only one in the world which caters exclusively to Saint Nick.

Putting theory into practice, the Gerlettis sell their most inexpensive Santa suit, which they have nicknamed "The Uncle Albert" because of its popularity with uncles of all ages, for $12.50.

The suit is a red satin outfit consisting of coat, pants, cap and oilcloth boots. Deluxe suits of red plush, trimmed with white fur and decorated with jeweled handmade belts and buttons run as high as $100.

Although the Gerlettis prefer the traditional red for Santa they will cater to personal whims as they did in the case of the Hollywood movie producer who ordered an entire white velvet outfit trimmed with matching fur.

The idea for this unique business started 10 years ago when Mrs. Gerletti, angered because she was asked to pay an exorbitant price for a rented suit, bought some red flannel and, using her husband's pajamas as a pattern, whipped one up—and sold it 24 hours later.

* * *

ALTHOUGH NEITHER of the Gerlettis had had any previous tailoring experience, the demand for their suits reached such proportions that, in 1951, Gerletti gave up a successful advertising career to launch the business on a full time basis.

Now they are turning out about 250 suits a year. In addition, they sell all such accessories as belts, mittens, hats and snowy white beards and wigs.

As soon as the Gerlettis realized that women enjoy playing Santa, too, they did something about it. Now, when Dad purchases his suit he can buy a replica of it for junior and a smart looking outfit, with a flared skirt, for Mom.

Dad need never fear that the costumes won't fit because they all come in one adjustable size guaranteed to fit any Santa regardless of height or weight.

Thanks to Mrs. Gerletti, the thin man no longer has an excuse for not being Santa. A special piece of underwear she has patented will build his 135 pounds up to a comfortable 300 in a matter of seconds!

* * *

WORRIED but enthusiastic grandfathers who are playing Saint Nick for the first time are among the Gerlettis' favorite customers.

"They pace up and down the store," says Mrs. Gerletti, "trying to get a 'Ho-Ho-Ho!' which has some pep in it, and asking our advice on the proper way to walk. Our customers expect us to know the answers and we try not to disappoint them."

So widely known has this business become that orders pour in from all parts of the world. One of the most unique was from an Eskimo who wrote from his igloo near Fairbanks, Alaska, that for 10 years he'd been satisfied to play Santa to his 11 children in his red flannel underwear and white fox furs, but now he wanted a "real Santa Claus suit."

Christmas Eve always finds the Gerlettis' store open until long after midnight. "We wouldn't want to let Santa down at the last minute," they explain.

Progress in Texas, Auto Count Shows

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (AP) — In 1916 the first automobile in these parts chugged its way up to College Hill with a student for Southwest Texas State Teachers College.

Barber Partners Don't Split Hairs

HARRISBURG (AP) — Partners John Hibner and Clyde Patton have their own ideas about naming their barber shop and geography doesn't influence their choice one bit.

Ten years ago they opened the Locust Street barber shop on Locust Street.

They have since moved to Pine Street but they brought their weather-worn shingle along still reading "Locust Street Barbershop".

Christmas Photographs Keep Memories Fresh

By IRVING DESFOR
(By The Associated Press)

The climax of the holiday season will be here shortly, bringing with it an unforgettable picture of neighborly and family happiness and good spirits. That is, it will be an unforgettable picture if cameras are retrieved from shelves, closets and gadget bags and put into active duty while things are taking place.

This requires a few minor preparations beforehand. However, camera fans, fired by last minute inspiration at the scene before them, too often are stymied by some little item they forgot to check beforehand.

For instance, it's embarrassing for a photographer to confess that the movie film he has on hand turns out to be for daylight color whereas for this occasion he required Type A for artificial light.

I know because it happened to me this past Thanksgiving when the family gathered. Naturally, my camera store "happened" to be closed that day, as it will be on Christmas.

* * *

SO LOOK OVER your film supply now and make sure you have the right type, and enough for color and black-and-white. A set of conversion filters is a handy thing to have around for emergencies. It will enable you to shoot color by changing the type you have to the type you need.

The one most recommended is the one that will change artificial light to daylight because you lose no film speed in the switch. Then you maintain a stock only of color film for artificial light and you're prepared for any color situation indoors or out.

Beware also of the pesky little gremlin who takes the life out of your flash batteries just before some momentous picture occasion. Sure your flash went off fine the last time. But it's no guarantee that it'll work Christmas morning when the little darlings discover what Santa left for them.

Not unless you check it now or put in fresh batteries just to be on the safe side. . .or have a replacement set standing by.

* * *

ANOTHER THING you can trip up on at an exciting time like this are the wires, light stands and tripods which some shutterbugs erect only on the main highways between rooms. Light stands and reflectors can be replaced these days, especially for movie fans, by a light bar.

This holds up to four lights which travel with your camera followed by only one wire, which is a lot less of a hazard.

Make sure ahead of time that your wire is long enough to stretch to all corners without snagging on furniture legs. It's better to have extra cord extensions so you can plug into an electric circuit that is not overburdened with TV or household appliances. Then you won't blow a fuse, literally and emotionally.

* * *

YOU MIGHT also reflect on where the mirrors, windows or other highly polished surfaces are in your house. That's so you can avoid them at the crucial moments of taking your pictures, especially with flash or reflector lights.

Despite all the things that can go wrong, there are more things that go right and they make Christmas pictures some of the most cherished memories in our family albums.

Jolly St. Nick and Flying Reindeer Unknown Until Columbia Prof Wrote His Famous Poem

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

children went to bed on Christmas Eve without visions of sugar plums dancing in their heads or thoughts of eight tiny reindeer pulling a miniature sleigh full of toys.

The reason? Nobody could agree as to exactly what St. Nick looked like. That is, until Dr. Clement Clarke Moore, a professor at Columbia University in New York, wrote his now famous poem that starts: "Twas the Night Before Christmas. . . ."

* * *

HE WROTE IT on Christmas Eve 1822, for his own children. And it might have sunk into obscurity had not Harrier Butler heard it read at the Moore home. She was the daughter of the rector of St. Paul's Church in Troy, N. Y.

She asked permission to read it to the children of her father's parish. She also sent the poem, minus the author's name, to the editor of the Troy, N. Y., Sentinel. It appeared there for the first time on Dec. 23, 1823.

The editor, Orville Holley, wrote: "We do not know to whom we are indebted for the following description of that unwearied patron of children, that homely but delightful personification of parental kindness— Santa Claus, his costume and his equipage, as he goes about visiting the firesides of his happy land, laden with Christmas bounties, but from whomsoever it may have come, we give thanks for it."

* * *

IT DIDN'T appear with the author's name attached until 1837 when it came out in a book entitled "The New York Book of Poetry."

From this beginning the Santa Claus we know today has spread all over the world. The poem has been translated into dozens of languages— creating everywhere the same picture of joy and generosity, the same feeling of unbounded goodfellowship represented in its final words: "Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good night."

Missing Car Found Fast

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Jim Madaris walked into police headquarters here to report his car stolen, and was followed in a few minutes later by another motorist who wanted to know if anyone had reported a lost car.

The second motorist said he was driving down Fourth Avenue in his heavy pickup truck when he noticed something dragging along behind. It was Mardaris' car—caught on a trailer hitch on the rear of the truck as the two vehicles bumped during curbside parking.

Even Tablecloths Can Carry Out Christmas Motif

Even the Christmas tablecloth is in for an Edwardian revival. Long tablecloths on small round tables are back in the parlor and even on the bedroom breakfast table. Carole Stupell of New York, famous for table designs, has appliqued enchanting red Christmas trees on green felt, and festooned the cloth with Christmas ornaments to spell the difference between Then and Now designs.

She uses white milk glass dishes, white porcelain - handled flatware and white linen napkins and suggests pinning little Santa faces to each napkin, so that guests may wear them and take them home as souveniers of a charming occasion.

An "angel" Christmas candle set in a gold - sprayed cluster of holly and fruits makes a delightful centerpiece, and Mrs. Stupell advocates the use of small, intimate table groupings this Christmas instead of one large festive table for the eggnog party, buffet or other repast.

Teachers Get Less Than Baby-Sitters

DETROIT (AP)— Teachers in Detroit get less pay per child than the average baby-sitter, says School Superintendent Samuel M. Brownell.

Teachers are paid at the rate of 15 cents an hour for each of 35 pupils, Brownell said, assuming she works at least six hours a day during a school year of 190 days for a total of $6,000.

"When you hire a baby-sitter," Brownell added, "you pay considerably more for a person of less skill and training."

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

children went to bed on Christmas Eve without visions of sugar plums dancing in their heads or thoughts of eight tiny reindeer pulling a miniature sleigh full of toys.

The reason? Nobody could agree as to exactly what St. Nick looked like. That is, until Dr. Clement Clarke Moore, a professor at Columbia University in New York, wrote his now famous poem that starts: "Twas the Night Before Christmas. . . ".

Up to that time St. Nicholas was anything a parent might wish to impose on his child— a figure tall or short, fat or thin, happy or stern.

* * *

HE WROTE IT on Christmas Eve 1822, for his own children. And it might have sunk into obscurity had not Harrier Butler heard it read at the Moore home. She was the daughter of the rector of St. Paul's Church in Troy, N. Y.

She asked permission to read it to the children of her father's parish. She also sent the poem, minus the author's name, to the editor of the Troy, N. Y., Sentinel. It appeared there for the first time on Dec. 23, 1823.

The editor, Orville Holley, wrote: "We do not know to whom we are indebted for the following description of that unwearied patron of children, that homely but delightful personification of parental kindness— Santa Claus, his costume and his equipage, as he goes about visiting the firesides of his happy land, laden with Christmas bounties, but from whomsoever it may have come, we give thanks for it."

* * *

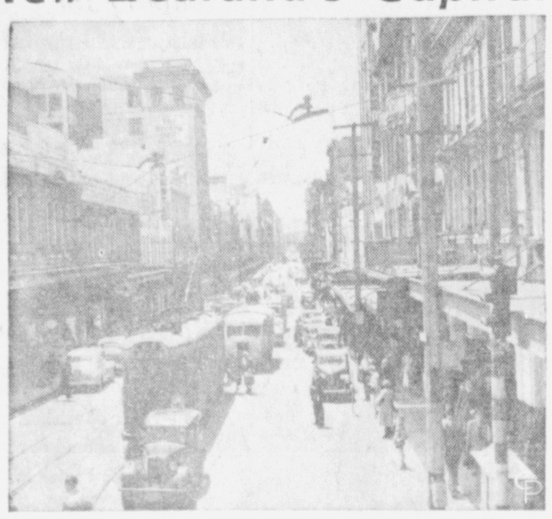
New Zealand's Capital Marked for Destruction



View of Willis street in downtown Wellington.

By ARTHUR SCHOLES
(Central Press Association)

WELLINGTON, New Zealand—This city of Wellington, capital and seat of government of the Doninion of New Zealand, is living on borrowed time!

Wellington, named after the famous British general of Nineteenth century, is a modern metropolis with a population of nearly 200,000.

At a meeting of the geology section of the Wellingon branch of the Royal Society recently, seismological scientists reported the city must expect a major destructive earthquake more than once a century.

Quakes are more common in Wellington than in any other major city in the world. During the first three months of this year, 86 earthquakes were recorded here!

The city has been lucky to have suffered only 14 major jolts in the past 116 years. However, the Wellington City Council is taking no chances. It has an earthquake emergency precautions service under constant alert. The service is run by 26 city wardens.

Under the emergency setup 28 first aid posts have been established, rescue equipment stored at strategic points and special rest centers have been arranged in suburbs to take care of the evacuated and homeless victims.

* * *

WELLINGTONIANS adopt a "couldn't care less' attitude about the quakes. Visitors note that the folk in "Earthquake City" have learned to sway from the hips rather than shake at the knees.

On the other hand, Australia, New Zealand's nearest neighbor, owes its relative, though not complete immunity, to earthquakes to its geological maturity, and its distance of several hundred miles from the junction of the earth's two major fault lines.

One fault line runs through New Guinea, to Burma, Tibet and the Himalaya area into Turkey and Greece, and out into the Atlantic near the Azores.

The other fault line is a rough circle around the perimeter of the Pacific, taking in New Zealand, the coasts of North and South America, Alaska, Japan, the Philippines, Indonesia and the Solomon islands.

About 5,000 earthquakes are recorded throughout the world each year. Considering the tremors that are missed by seismographs, scientists estimte that at least 30,000 earth tremors occur each year.

In the past five years 894 shakes have been felt in New Zealand. altogether, New Zealand has experienced 80 destructive jolts of a maximum intensity of seven or over, which killed 284 people.

* * *

SIX JOLTS had a reading of between 10 and 12 on the Modified Mercalli intensity scale. Fortunately, four of these occurred in bush country where there were few settlers.

New Zealand is divided into four seismic regions. The No. 1 region, of which Wellington is the center, has had 97 per cent of all shakes in the last 30 years.

At least four main earth fractures run through the Wellington area. Scientists say there is still a lot of strain stored waiting to be released. A major quake in 1885 raised the waterfront five feet.

Today, with a growing population, and blocks of flats clinging precariously to harbor hillsides, it takes little imagination to visualize the disaster that might follow another major shake.

Both were noted athletes and scholars in high school and college; they attended medical school together and each married his college sweetheart. They each have one child. And both entered private practice as associates of other physicians prior to going into service.

Two Million Yule Cards Will Stray This Year

* * *

(Central Press Association)

Although Christmas is the friendliest time of the year, about two million friendships will be strained in the next few weeks. That number of Christmas cards will go astray this year, according to postal authorities' estimates, because of faulty addressing or posting.

And many cards that do reach their marks will weaken friendships instead of strengthening them because they lack good taste or fail to meet standards of simple Christmas card etiquet.

Oversights can cause a card to miss its destination or give an impression of poor taste, according to Jerlyn Madison, writing consultant for one of the nation's largest pen manufacturing companies. She offers the following check list to make sure cards carry Yule greetings effectively and attractively:

* * *

DO— be sure your card expresses friendliness. Whether it's an elaborate engraved card, a handwritten note, a photograph of your family or home, or a holiday informal, it should express the warm sentiment of Yuletide.

DO— sign your complete name when your name is not imprinted or engraved.

DO— send a card to husband and wife even if you know only one— unless it's a semi-business card. Then it can be sent to one or the other, preferably at his or her office.

* * *

DO— sign husband-wife cards Mary and Bill Smith or Bill and Mary Smith or the William Smiths or Mr. and Mrs. William Smith. Any of these is correct.

DO— put Dad's name first, followed by Mother's and then the children according to age regardless of sex when the complete family is listed.

DO— use a three-cent stamp. It assures forwarding if the address is changed or a return to the sender if undeliverable.

HOWEVER:

DON'T— send a stiff, formal card to close friends and relatives.

DON'T— sign the card in a sloppy or illegible manner. There's no sense in sending a card if the recipient can't discover who sent it.

DON'T— omit postal zone numbers when mailing to large cities. That will delay your cards and cause extra work for the overburdened postal clerks.

DON'T— omit the return address on the envelope.

DON'T— delay buying or ordering Christmas cards. If you haven't got your cards, get them today.

Alaska Experiences Another Boom in 1956

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — The Alaska Visitors Assn. reports an all-time peak in tourist travel to the territory in 1956, despite the absence of American steamship service which once was the No. 1 tourist carrier.

Airlines reported the biggest-ever tourist traffic. The Tok Junction customs station checked in 6,205 vehicles on the Alaska Highway, with more than 17,000 pasengers. Most of them were listed as tourists.

Don't Be Businesslike!

RUSSELL SPRINGS, Ky. (AP) — Sometimes it doesn't pay to be businesslike. An account book found at the scene of a bootleg whisky raid led to the issuing of 16 warrants against persons suspected of dealing in illegal whisky sales in dry Russell County.

Why Is Christmas on Dec. 25?

By RAYMOND WILCOVE

WASHINGTON — Millions all over the world once again will celebrate Christmas, blissfully unaware that scholars have disputed for centuries the exact date when Jesus Christ was born.

If one thing is certain, it is that the Savior was not born Dec. 25, the date generally observed as His natal day. On that, scholars are agreed.

The Bible rules out Dec. 25 as a possibility. Although most people observe that date now, Christmas has been celebrated on previous occasions on Nov. 17, March 28, April 19 or 20, and May 20. Russian Orthodox and some others still observe Jan. 6 as Christmas.

While the Bible does not furnish many clues as to the date of Christ's birth, it does make it pretty clear that it did not occur Dec. 25. Because Luke wrote that at the time of His birth ". . .there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock at night."

* * *

BETHLEHEM is situated in the temperate zone, about the same latitude as El Paso, Tex. December is bitterly cold there and the rainy season is underway.

Luke gives a clue to when the Christ child was born: During the hot months, the sheep will not graze in the fields while the sun is shining. Thus, in summer, the shepherds were wont to lead their charges to the pasture at night.

On the basis of this, scholars estimate that Christ was born in late August or September.

* * *

WHY THEN Dec. 25? One theory is that the date was selected by an early Christian ruler in Rome because the Saturnalia, a great Roman holiday, was observed from Dec. 19 to 26.

It is speculated that this ruler felt that observance of Christmas at this time would lessen the impact of the pagan holiday.

The Roman festival had many of the features of our Christmas observance. Gifts were exchanged, candles were lighted, government and business offices were closed, school children were given a holiday, and Romans greeted each other with Io Saturnalia. Today, we say "Merry Christmas."

* * *

DEC. 25 also was observed by early Britons, long before they became Christians, but as the first day of the new year.

During several periods in history, Christians banned the observance of Christmas. The British Parliament did so at one time, as did the Pilgrims. The latter thought it was a sacrilege to observe it in a festive manner.

In what year was Christ born? Here again no one knows. A Roman monk set the date at A. D. 1 about 600 years after His birth, but scholars now virtually are agreed he erred.

Astronomers have speculated that the Star of Bethlehem, which directed the three wise men to Bethlemen, actually was a conjunction of the planets Saturn and Jupiter. Astronomers say this phenomena occurred in 7 B. C.

However, some historians think Christ was born in 4, 5 or 6 B. C.

Anyway, Merry Christmas!

Wealthy, Asks Pay Cut

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The janitor at George Wythe Junior High School put a slightly off-beat request to the Hampton School Board. He asked the board to reduce his $155 a month salary to $150 so the size of his school income wouldn't jeopardize his Social Security benefits. The board took under advisement the request of the janitor—fellow named Wealthy Algee.

Jumping Job

Although Christmas is the friendliest time of the year, about two million friendships will be strained in the next few weeks. That number of Christmas cards will go astray this year, according to postal authorities' estimates, because of faulty addressing or posting.

And many cards that do reach their marks will weaken friendships instead of strengthening them because they lack good taste or fail to meet standards of simple Christmas card etiquet.

Oversights can cause a card to miss its destination or give an impression of poor taste, according to Jerlyn Madison, writing consultant for one of the nation's largest pen manufacturing companies. She offers the following check list to make sure cards carry Yule greetings effectively and attractively:

* * *

DO— be sure your card expresses friendliness. Whether it's an elaborate engraved card, a handwritten note, a photograph of your family or home, or a holiday informal, it should express the warm sentiment of Yuletide.

DO— sign your complete name when your name is not imprinted or engraved.

DO— send a card to husband and wife even if you know only one— unless it's a semi - business card. Then it can be sent to one or the other, preferably at his or her office.

* * *

DO— sign husband - wife cards Mary and Bill Smith or Bill and Mary Smith or the William Smiths or Mr. and Mrs. William Smith. Any of these is correct.

DO— put Dad's name first, followed by Mother's and then the children according to age regardless of sex when the complete family is listed.

DO— sign the card neatly and legibly so the recipient will recognize the sender.

DO— use a three - cent stamp. It assures forwarding if the address is changed or a return to the sender if undeliverable.

HOWEVER:

DON'T— send a stiff, formal card to close friends and relatives.

DON'T— send a card to husband or wife only even if you know only one of the couple— unless it's a semi-business card.

DON'T— sign the card in a sloppy or illegible manner. There's no sense in sending a card if the recipient can't discover who sent it.

DON'T— omit postal zone numbers when mailing to large cities. That will delay your cards and cause extra work for the overburdened postal clerks.

DON'T— omit the return address on the envelope.

DON'T— use washable ink for envelope addressing. It may smear if exposed to rain or dampness.

DON'T— delay buying or ordering Christmas cards. If you haven't got your cards, get them today.

Alaska Experiences Another Boom in 1956

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — The Alaska Visitors Assn. reports an all - time peak in tourist travel to the territory in 1956, despite the absence of American steamship service which once was the No. 1 tourist carrier.

Airlines reported the biggest-ever tourist traffic. The Tok Junction customs station checked in 6,205 vehicles on the Alaska Highway, with more than 17,000 pasengers. Most of them were listed as tourists.

Don't Be Businesslike!

RUSSELL SPRINGS, Ky. (AP) — Sometimes it doesn't pay to be businesslike. An account book found at the scene of a bootleg whisky raid led to the issuing of 16 warrants against persons suspected of dealing in illegal whisky sales in dry Russell County.

Why Is Christmas on Dec. 25?

By RAYMOND WILCOVE

WASHINGTON — Millions all over the world once again will celebrate Christmas, blissfully unaware that scholars have disputed for centuries the exact date when Jesus Christ was born.

If one thing is certain, it is that the Savior was not born Dec. 25, the date generally observed as His natal day. On that, scholars are agreed.

The Bible rules out Dec. 25 as a possibility. Although most people observe that date now, Christmas has been celebrated on previous occasions on Nov. 17, March 28, April 19 or 20, and May 20. Russian Orthodox and some others still observe Jan. 6 as Christmas.

While the Bible does not furnish many clues as to the date of Christ's birth, it does make it pretty clear that it did not occur Dec. 25. Because Luke wrote that at the time of His birth ". . .there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock at night."

* * *

BETHLEHEM is situated in the temperate zone, about the same latitude as El Paso, Tex. December is bitterly cold there and the rainy season is underway.

Luke gives a clue to when the Christ child was born. During the hot months, the sheep will not graze in the fields while the sun is shining. Thus, in summer, the shepherds were wont to lead their charges to the pasture at night.

On the basis of this, scholars estimate that Christ was born in late August or September.

* * *

WHY THEN Dec. 25? One theory is that the date was selected by an early Christian ruler in Rome because the Saturnalia, a great Roman holiday, was observed from Dec. 19 to 26.

It is speculated that this ruler felt that observance of Christmas at this time would lessen the impact of the pagan holiday.

The Roman festival had many of the features of our Christmas observance. Gifts were exchanged, candles were lighted, government and business offices were closed, school children were given a holiday, and Romans greeted each other with Io Saturnalia. Today, we say "Merry Christmas."

* * *

DEC. 25 also was observed by early Britons, long before they became Christians, but as the first day of the new year.

During several periods in history, Christians banned the observance of Christmas. The British Parliament did so at one time, as did the Pilgrims. The latter thought it was a sacrilege to observe it in a festive manner.

In what year was Christ born? Here again no one knows. A Roman monk set the date at A. D. 1 about 600 years after His birth, but scholars now virtually are agreed he erred.

Astronomers have speculated that the Star of Bethlehem, which directed the three wise men to Bethlemen, actually was a conjunction of the planets Saturn and Jupiter. Astronomers say this phenomena occurred in 7 B. C.

However, some historians think Christ was born in 4, 5 or 6 B. C.

Anyway, Merry Christmas!

Wealthy, Asks Pay Cut

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The janitor at George Wythe Junior High School put a slightly off-beat request to the Hampton School Board. He asked the board to reduce his $155 a month salary to $150 so the size of his school income wouldn't jeopardize his Social Security benefits. The board took under advisement the request of the janitor—fellow named Wealthy Algee.

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — A workman jumped from an intersection pedestrian island just in time to escape a car that knocked down a traffic light standard.

Viking Fete Marks Shetland Island New Year

By STEVE LIBBY
(Central Press Correspondent)

The Shetland Islands are remote. They lie lonely and serene where the Atlantic ocean and the North Sea meet, 120 miles north of the British mainland and 200 miles north of Aberdeen in Scotland.

Many people know the Shetlands for the famous Shetland ponies, or for the beautiful variety of magnificent, hand - knit woolens, or— remembering the years during World War II— as the terminus of "The Shetland Bus," the Norwegian underground escape route.

The Shetlands are Norse in nature, unlike the Gaelic background of the not-too-distant Hebrides, and their way of life has a close affinity to things Norwegian.

Lying as they do in the main sea routes of the Viking nomads, the Shetlands early became a Norse stronghold and they remained Norwegian until 1471 when they were pledged for an unpaid portion of the dowry of the king of Norway's daughter on her marriage to James III of Scotland.

* * *

THESE ISLANDS stretch for 75 miles from north to south. There is a harsh grandeur to the rolling hills. There are giant cliffs which hold back the raging seas. There are inlets where live a multitude of birds of rare variety and where seals bask and play in deep, clear water.

The Viking origin of the Shetlanders are best displayed in the annual festival of Up-Helly - A', celebrated on the last Tuesday in January. It marks the end of Jola Bod — midwinter — and the start of the sun's "journey" to the Northern Hemisphere.

The true origins of the festivals are lost, but for centuries Up-Helly-A' has been observed faithfully. During the Nineteenth Century bonfires in blazing tar-barrels were towed through the single street of Lerwick, Shetland's capital. The participants, or "Guizers," followed, parading and stopping by the homes of friends and neighbors for feasting and dancing.

* * *

FROM 1886 progress was made toward the magnificent torch-light procession and bonefire which now constitute Up-Helly - A' in this remote corner of the world. Norse mythology was drawn upon— and taken liberties with — to provide heraldic and spectacular effects. The soldiers of the islands trained in World War I added precision to the procession and a Guizer jarl was elected by popular vote. Today, during Up-Helly-A', everyone joins in.

The town of Lerwick is given over to a day and night of fantastic fun and celebration following the months of preparation by the citizens of the community.

* * *

ON THE DAY of the celebration, orders of assembly, together with the times to draw torches and to light them, are issued by the worthy chief guizar and hung on the Market Cross.

In the early evening, the 30-foot replica of the long - boat is hauled into place and crowds assemble with torches. A Very light fired high across the harbor is the signal to light them.

The chief Guizer, garbed in the full regalia of a Viking jarl and surrounded by his henchmen, takes up his position in the long-boat and gives the order to advance.

Stalwart fishermen pull the boat through the cobblestoned streets of the little community, followed by thousands of flambeaux which light the narrow streets and the faces of the crowds. The boat is pulled to the shores of Loch Clickhimin, just beyond the borders of the town. It is here that the torchbearers, weaving intricate patterns of fire, twist and turn as if unravelling the tortuous centuries of the barren island.

After the rituals, among cheers and barbaric yells, the flaming torches are flung into the high parabolas of the boat— for this is the Burning-Ground. The first part of the evening ends as flames consume the boat and light up the shores of the loch.

* * *

FOLLOWING the burning ceremony, the island - folk return to their homes to don their costumes for the festivities of the night. All through the night there is dancing and music, as the guizers sing The Norseman's Home, and there is feasting, too.

The night - long is not ended until morning when, at a community breakfast hall, a meal requiring meticulous preparation by all the wives of the islands is served. Its actual presentation involves all, either as spectators or participants.

Up-Helly-A' has ended for another year. However, the memory of the thrills and excitement must remain for a full 12 months — for there is little entertainment in the Shetlands. Enough wonderment is stored in this one day and night to create conversation among the islanders until the time has come to prepare for another Up-Helly A' — perhaps the strangest ritual performed by subjects of Queen Elizabeth II.
